Expect a strong 2Q26 as cost momentum accelerates and 911 mix offsets lower FY27 volumes; Reiterate Buy

P911_p.DE	12m Price Target: €57.00	Price: €45.13	Upside: 26.3%

Expect strong 2Q26 with story in-line with our recent Buy thesis: We expect the company to report an EBIT of €785mn (vs €586mn VA cons), implying an 8.5% margin (VA cons 6.6%). We estimate a €50mn net positive effect from the net effect of a provision reversal and additional restructuring costs, lifting the margin above the 5.5-7.5% FY corridor. On an underlying basis we expect the quarter to benefit from an improving 911 mix in-line with our Buy thesis.

Cost momentum building post our upgrade: Since our 11 June upgrade, company messaging and press reports point to accelerating cost momentum, with a second personnel package close to finalisation likely equal to or larger than the first (c.3.9k of 41.8k employees) with the resulting restructuring costs likely fully offset by the provision unwind. Market discussion of a relocation of Cayenne production from Bratislava to Porsche-owned Leipzig or Zuffenhausen suggests a further signal of streamlining ahead of the 7 October CMD.

911 ASP likely even higher, offsetting further volume declines: We cut FY27 volumes yoy to -11% (vs -2% previously), with FY26 unchanged at -10%, as we see China weakness and the ICE Macan production stop hitting volumes, yet we see 911 strength as a continuously underappreciated offset. We now factor a pricing lift alongside mix for FY27, raising FY27 911 ASP growth to +8% (vs c.5% previously), plus c.1k units of the widely discussed 911 GT2 RS at a GSe ASP of €475k.

Revise near-term volume expectations down albeit largely offset by mix: We revise our EPS estimates for Porsche AG by +2.4%/-2.2%/-2.9% for FY26/27/28, factoring our latest views on volumes, cost initiatives and higher 911 ASP mix helped by the GT2. We use our FY27/28 blended EPS estimate of €2.87 on a P/E multiple of 20x to derive our 12-month price target of €57 (prev. €59). We reiterate Buy.

Cost-momentum accelerating with 911 likely to further offset lower FY27 volumes

We upgraded Porsche AG to Buy on 11 June, emphasizing room for positive earnings revisions despite continued structural headwinds, which we believe are now largely priced in. Our differentiated view centred on two underappreciated near-term offset mechanisms: i) 911 mix normalization driving ASP acceleration and ii) indirect cost reduction, namely on SG&A. Since 11 June, significant news flow and company messaging have signalled an acceleration of cost-momentum alongside continued 911 strength, further supporting our thesis.

Cost-momentum accelerating and progressing in-line with our Buy-thesis

Second personnel package close to finalisation

Several developments flagged at the time of our upgrade have since been addressed by the company or reported in the press, reinforcing our recovery thesis. We had highlighted that Porsche's CEO would likely push for another personnel package, which we now see as close to closing per latest management guidance, with market discussion suggesting the programme could be equal to or larger than the first package encompassing c.3.9k of the total 41.8k employees (as of FY25). On the 2Q26 pre-close call, management emphasised the company will incur an additional c.€300mn of restructuring costs for FY26, putting the total ex-tariffs to €1.2-1.3bn for FY26. However, these additional headwinds will be fully offset by an unwind of supplier cost provisions booked in FY25, which came above expectations.

While the details of these extra restructurings have not been provided, we believe the additional costs are likely related to the second personnel package currently in negotiation. A recent Handelsblatt article supports this view, citing that Porsche has already cut three senior sales leadership roles and consolidated responsibilities, while further substantiating claims of a well-advanced personnel package comprising c.4k additional cuts with room for more. We view these developments as constructive and supportive of our thesis that Porsche's new management will target the indirect and SG&A cost base, which has seen clear bloating versus historical and peer levels.

Potential Cayenne relocation to Porsche-owned factory

We further flagged in our upgrade the potential relocation of Cayenne production away from VW-owned Bratislava to one of Porsche's own Leipzig or Zuffenhausen sites. A subsequent Handelsblatt article suggests Porsche's CEO is actively weighing this decision. While the potential decision and any likely P&L impact would be best viewed as a medium-term benefit, we see these considerations as a further positive signal of accelerating momentum on cost initiatives and company streamlining as we head towards the 7 October CMD.

911 ASP likely higher and supported by GT2 which will offset lower FY27/28 volumes

Further cutting near-term volume expectations on China and product launch commentary

We further revise our near-term volume outlook lower, as the latest China developments and management commentary indicates a larger than anticipated volume decline for the near-term. We now expect a volume decline of -10%/-11% for FY26/27, (vs -10%/-2% previously). In particular, with a production stop of the 14-year-old ICE Macan this summer, we expect the sale of the model to cease in FY27, while we see the eMacan as unlikely to substitute this business significantly in light of the geopolitical environment. On new product launches, we now expect the new ICE Macan to only start ramping properly in 2028, the BEV 718 to arrive late into 2028, and the ICE 718 to arrive only in 2029 together with the new K1, thus pressuring top-line on near-term estimates.

911 pricing and special model to offset FY27 volume headwind

We see two critical factors as continuously underappreciated near-term offsets to volume headwinds, even as our further downward volume revisions pose an additional drag on estimates. First, as detailed in our upgrade, the maturing of the latest 992.2 911 model generation, which we expect to mature by FY27 based on historical generations, is likely to significantly lift 911 model ASP. We revise this analysis by factoring in a Porsche pricing lift on the 911 range for FY27, having previously considered only mix effects, raising our ASP growth expectation for FY27 to +8% versus c.5% previously. Second, we factor in 1k units (800/200 for FY27/28) of the not-yet-revealed but highly discussed and recently press-featured (see here) 911 GT2 RS, the absolute top-end and exclusive 911 model of the recent 992.2 generation, at a GSe ASP of €475k. We also note the potential for a supercar akin to the 918 Spyder (sold in 2013-15) to be revealed, albeit we do not factor this into our estimates. We see these two considerations as near-term offset mechanisms that we believe remain underappreciated by investors.

Valuation & key risks

We continue to value Porsche on a forward P/E basis applying a target multiple of 20x (unchanged) on our blended FY26/27 EPS deriving a 12-month target price of €57 (previously €59).

Downside risks:

- Delays to new product launches and delivery timelines: Any further slippage in anticipated product launches, whether from regulatory, supplier or development setbacks, would extend the existing volume gap and delay the expected delivery/margin recovery.
- Increase in competitive forces across key segments: Intensifying pressure from both traditional European performance peers and well-capitalized Chinese EV entrants moving upmarket could erode the pricing power and ASP growth assumptions central to our thesis.
- Lower delivery growth and supply-demand mismatch across BEV and ICE models: A faster regulatory push toward electrification or slower consumer BEV adoption could create inventory imbalances, leading to margin-dilutive discounting on electric models alongside premature ICE run-off.
- Lower profitability from delivery shortfalls or weaker-than-expected BEV gross margins: If BEV unit economics disappoint due to higher battery costs, unfavorable platform economics, or competitive pricing pressure, the offset from 911 mix normalization may prove insufficient to sustain group-level margin targets.
- Ongoing deterioration of business in China: A sharper-than-expected decline driven by further luxury tax threshold adjustments, intensifying domestic competition from premium Chinese OEMs, or broader macroeconomic weakness could push China deliveries meaningfully below our base case.
- Failure to secure raw material supply: Supply disruptions from geopolitical tensions, export restrictions, or sourcing concentration risk could lead to production delays and higher input costs as Porsche scales BEV production toward its medium-term targets.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our universe of rated stocks) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

For a more detailed description of how we calculate the GS Factor Profile, please contact your GS representative.

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Early-Stage Biotech, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region manages Regional Conviction Lists, which are selected from Buy rated stocks on the respective region's Investment Lists and represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction Lists are managed by the Investment Review Committee or other designated committee in each respective region and do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) are removed pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Early-Stage Biotech (ES). An investment rating and a target price are not assigned pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when this company has neither a drug, treatment or medical device that has passed a Phase II clinical trial nor a license to distribute a post-Phase II drug, treatment or medical device. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company.
