Beat-and-Raise on NAND Reacceleration and Continued Momentum on Leading-Edge F/L and DRAM; CY26 WFE Raised to $150B+ with Strong CY27 Setup; LT GMs Move to Mid-50% Range; Reit OW

Lam Research Corporation (LRCX) delivered yet another clean beat-and-raise, with strong results that beat Street expectations and an even more impressive out-quarter guide that surpassed the high end of buyside expectations we had heard heading into the print. The company posted record revenues, gross margins (~highest in 20 years), operating margins, and EPS, and guided out-quarter revenues to $8.10B ±$400M, implying ~20% Q/Q growth off a record base. Strength in the quarter was driven by a sharp acceleration in NAND spending, continued DRAM strength, improving leading-edge foundry/logic demand, and another record quarter in CSBG. Outside of the strength in memory (NAND/DRAM), LRCX highlighted traction at leading-edge foundry/logic customers and noted that it was in active engagement with a "new logic customer in the U.S.," and we think this creates another potential share-gain opportunity for the company, adding to its ability to outgrow broader WFE over the next few years. Looking ahead, LRCX guided out-quarter revenues to $8.10B at the midpoint, with gross margins of ~52%, operating margins of ~39.5%, and non-GAAP EPS of $2.15 — all of which screened higher than Street/buyside expectations heading into the print. LRCX also notably updated its multi-year profitability framework, stating that it is now targeting mid-50% gross margins and mid-40% operating margins over the next several years. To us, this marks a positive structural shift in expectations, as LRCX is now effectively moving from proving that ~50% gross margins are sustainable to establishing an explicit path toward mid-50% gross margins. Much like its capital equipment peers earlier this week, LRCX also raised its CY26 WFE outlook to the low-$150B range, up from its prior ~$140B view. The upward revision reflects stronger AI-driven investment across memory, foundry/logic, and advanced packaging, as well as customers finding incremental cleanroom capacity and resolving prior bottlenecks to capacity additions. And while management did not provide a numerical WFE forecast for CY27, it characterized the setup as "extraordinary," with current customer conversations signaling unprecedented long-term demand visibility into 2027 and beyond. From a bottom-up standpoint, LRCX expects CY27 WFE growth to be led by DRAM, followed by F/L, and then NAND, with management remaining confident in its ability to outperform broader WFE growth due to its technology leadership in deposition and etch, expanding SAM (~trending towards high-30% of WFE), and strong customer partnerships. On the back of the results, stronger out-quarter guidance, and the improved multi-year profitability framework, we are raising our 2026 estimates and establishing our new Dec-27 price target of $340 (vs. prior Dec-26 PT of $315), which assumes LRCX trades at ~30x our 2H27 annualized EPS power of $11.35, broadly in line with comparable large-cap semiconductor capital equipment peers.

Summary Investment Thesis and Valuation

Investment Thesis

Capital spending environment driven by technology transitions (5nm/3nm/2nm) Foundry / Logic, sub-20nm DRAM, and 3D NAND.

Market leader in plasma etch, thin-film deposition (metal and dielectric) platforms, photoresist strip systems, and single-wafer wet/plasma-based cleaning products.

Service/installed base business continues to outperform through cycles.

Expansion of its end markets, market share gain across etching, deposition, and cleaning, technological leadership, and scale should enable Lam Research to outgrow the overall market and drive an EPS CAGR of 18-20% over the next two to three years.

Valuation

Our Dec-27 PT assumes that LRCX trades at ~30x its 2H27 annualized earnings power of $11.35, in-line with comparable large-cap semiconductor capital equipment peers.

- Jun-Qtr results came in above Street estimates, driven by a sharp acceleration in NAND spending, continued DRAM strength, and leading-edge F/L demand… LRCX reported strong Jun-Qtr revenues of $6.72B (+15% Q/Q. +30% Y/Y), above the midpoint of prior guidance/Street estimates at ~$6.60B and largely in-line with buyside expectations. This marked the fourth consecutive quarter of record revenues, with the mix of system sales becoming increasingly geared towards memory (~46% of system revenues this quarter vs. ~39% last quarter). The source of this increase primarily came from NAND, which more than doubled Q/Q as customers accelerated conversions to 256+ layer devices for enterprise SSD / AI storage demand. DRAM also remained strong at ~23% of systems revenues (a slight step down from the record ~27% last quarter). The remaining ~54% of system sales were accounted for by Foundry (~44% this quarter vs. ~54% last quarter) and Logic (~10% this quarter vs. ~7% last quarter), with management noting that it was seeing traction at leading-edge F/L customers (specifically on 2/3nm nodes + advanced packaging) and that it was actively engaging with a "new logic customer in the U.S." Outside of its systems business, LRCX also posted strong results in its CSBG business, which delivered a third consecutive record quarter of revenues at $2.47B (+17% Q/Q, +43% Y/Y), due to record upgrades (NAND), additional growth in Reliant, and sustained strength in spares demand.
- Sep-Qtr revenue guide was considerably above Street/buyside expectations, implying a material step up in growth and continued operating leverage... At the midpoint, LRCX guided Sep-Qtr revenues to $8.10B, implying more than 20% Q/Q growth, with gross margins of ~52%, operating margins at ~39.5%, and non-GAAP EPS of $2.15 — all of which screened higher than Street/Buyside expectations coming into the print. Although opex is expected to rise next quarter, LRCX noted that the rate of spending should grow at a much slower pace than revenue growth, creating continued operating leverage going forward. More importantly, LRCX updated its multi-year profitability framework, with the company now targeting mid-50% gross margins and mid-40% operating margins over the next several years, both of which will be underpinned by the company's scale, new product introductions, value-based pricing, and further operational efficiencies. We view this as a meaningful reset, as LRCX is already operating above the profitability objectives it outlined at its 2025 Investor Day.
- CY26 WFE raised to the low-$150B range, with CY27 WFE setup described as "extraordinary"... Much like its peers, LRCX raised its CY26 WFE outlook to the low-$150B range, up from its prior view of ~$140B, and clarified that the earlier upside bias has now effectively played out into the new forecast. The upward revision reflects stronger AI-driven investment across memory, foundry/logic, and advanced packaging, as well as customers finding incremental cleanroom capacity and resolving prior bottlenecks to capacity additions. Although management did not provide a numerical WFE forecast for 2027, it characterized the setup as "extraordinary" as current customer conversations signal unprecedented long-term demand visibility. From a bottom-up perspective, management flagged that it expects 2027 WFE growth to be led by DRAM, followed by F/L, then NAND, with the belief that LRCX would continue to outperform broader WFE growth due to its technology leadership (in deposition & etch) and its strong customer partnerships.
- Raising PT to $340 on new 2H27 annualized EPS of $11.35… On the back of tonight's results, we are raising our 2026 estimates to reflect management's stronger out-quarter guidance and commentary and initiating our new Dec-27 PT of $340. Our new PT assumes that LRCX trades at ~30x (peer multiple) its 2H27 annualized earnings power of $11.35, in-line with comparable large-cap semicap peers.

Investment Thesis, Valuation and Risks

Lam Research (Overweight; Price Target: $340.00)

Investment Thesis

We believe the current semiconductor capital spending environment is in the midst of expansion, driven by 7nm, 5nm and 3nm at Foundry/Logic, >100 layer 3D NAND, and 1x DRAM in 2023. Lam Research is a market leader in plasma etch, thin-film deposition (metal and dielectric) platforms, photoresist strip systems, and single-wafer wet/plasma-based cleaning products. Lam's installed base business continues to outperform through cycles. We expect a combination of market expansion of its end markets, market share gain across etching, deposition, and cleaning, technological leadership, and economies of scale (as a result of the Novellus acquisition) should enable Lam Research to outgrow the overall market and drive an EPS CAGR of 18-20% over the next two to three years. We see significant upside potential to our price target, which drives our Overweight rating on the stock.

Valuation

Our Dec-27 PT assumes that LRCX trades at ~30x its 2H27 annualized earnings power of $11.35, in-line with comparable large-cap semiconductor capital equipment peers.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

Semiconductor equipment industry is subject to major fluctuations

The semiconductor market is highly cyclical with timing, length, and severity of the cycles difficult to predict. As such, down cycles in the industry could result in muted demand from its customers.

Failure to develop new products and processes that address rapid technological change could risk its market position

The semiconductor equipment industry is constantly developing and changing. Failure to develop new products and technologies in a timely manner in response to changing market conditions could impact Lam Research's business.

A high concentration of product could pose downside risks

Lam Research derives a substantial percentage of its revenues from a limited number of products. This product concentration may be subject to additional risks relating to a weak demand environment, competitive threats, and technological changes. Additionally, the company relies heavily on international sales (>90% of total sales are outside of the US).

J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:
J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.
