Fragrance's next growth wave: back to blockbusters

As fragrance growth normalises, performance will depend less on category tailwinds and more on the ability to create new blockbuster pillars. L'Oréal (Buy) remains the execution benchmark, but we see clear re-rating potential in Puig (Buy) and Interparfums (Buy).

Fragrance is an offer-driven category, with demand disproportionately shaped by new formats, scents and activations that drive trial. Growth was easier to achieve in the post-Covid cycle as the consumer base expanded and usage frequency increased. We still expect penetration gains, but as category growth normalises to 3.5% in Q1 and competition intensifies (6,000 launches in 2025 versus 2,500 in 2019), growth will increasingly depend on launches that can become new pillars. Over the next three years, we expect Puig to launch blockbusters for Rabanne and Jean Paul Gaultier and to scale La Bomba; Interparfums to build new pillars across its four largest brands alongside the debut of Longchamp; and L'Oréal potentially to introduce a new Armani pillar and to develop the Kering Beauty franchise.

Blockbusters have long been a durable growth engine, even before the recent supercycle. At L'Oréal, fragrance sales rose 8% in 2019, supported by three launches including Libre, which six years later became the world's leading women's fragrance, overtaking Chanel. Earlier in the mid-2010s, L'Oréal launched another wave of blockbusters, notably La Vie Est Belle, which helped drive double-digit growth in women's fragrance in 2014 and over 9% growth in 2015, and still anchors Lancôme today. Puig followed a similar playbook, with Good Girl surpassing 3% market share within six years of launch. Meanwhile, Interparfums has built Jimmy Choo into a franchise generating over €200m in sales through a steady rollout of new pillars. Search interest in La Bomba and Paradigme tracks ahead of comparable past launches, suggesting newness continues to resonate with consumers.

We do not believe this is fully reflected in valuations. As fragrance growth normalises, we expect a step up in launch activity to support near-term sell-in and extend the medium-term growth runway. In our view, Puig and Interparfums, trading at 13x and 16x CY27 P/E, do not fully reflect that opportunity, leaving scope for re-rating if execution remains consistent. While some of L'Oréal's premium at 26x P/E is justified by unparalleled execution and a more diversified category footprint, the gap remains wide versus history. Looking ahead, we expect Puig's CMD on 28 October to outline its runway in women's fragrance and plans to reinvigorate Rabanne, while L'Oréal's 1 December CMD is set to focus on its AI agenda.

Blockbusters have long been a durable growth engine

Blockbusters have long been a durable growth engine. At L'Oréal, fragrance sales rose 8% in 2019, supported by three launches including Libre, which six years later became the world's leading women's fragrance, overtaking Chanel. Meanwhile, Prada scaled from under €100m in sales in 2021 to more than €700m, driven by the Paradoxe and Paradigme launches. Earlier, L'Oréal's mid-2010s blockbuster wave, notably La Vie Est Belle, helped drive double-digit growth in women's fragrance in 2014 and over 9% growth in 2015, and still anchors Lancôme today. Looking ahead, the CEO of L'Oréal Luxe USA recently indicated that H2 26 will bring new product launches.

Puig followed a similar playbook: Good Girl surpassed 3% market share within six years, while 1 Million reached 1% in its first year and continued building over the next decade. Meanwhile, Interparfums built Jimmy Choo into a €200m-plus franchise through a steady stream of new pillars, including I Want Choo, which grew 27% in 2025 despite being four years old. Montblanc's launch of Explorer likewise drove nearly 30% revenue growth and still underpins the franchise today. More recently, Coty's Goddess launch helped drive Burberry to more than 30% retail sales growth in 2024, with the franchise still ranking among the top 20 women's fragrances.

Blockbusters will drive the next wave of fragrance growth

Growth was relatively easy in the post-Covid period, as the consumer base expanded and usage frequency increased. Looking ahead, we still see room for further penetration gains, but as category growth normalises and competition intensifies, performance is likely to increasingly depend on launches that can evolve into new pillars. In prestige fragrance, brands typically introduce a new blockbuster every three to five years, while annual flankers help keep core franchises relevant and aligned with shifting consumer preferences. Against that backdrop, over the next three years we expect:

- L'Oréal could introduce a new Armani pillar, one of its largest fragrance franchises, with no major launch since My Way in 2020. Valentino has been successfully driven by Born in Roma since 2019, but we would expect the brand to broaden that platform over the next three years. Lancôme also screens as a credible candidate for a new blockbuster, having not launched a major new pillar since Idole in 2019. We also expect L'Oréal to develop the Kering Beauty fragrance portfolio (Bottega Veneta, Balenciaga), and ultimately Gucci by FY28 at the latest.
- Puig is set to launch a women's blockbuster at *Jean Paul Gaultier in H2 26 as it looks to narrow the gap between its feminine and stronger masculine positions. In men's, flanker extensions have helped propel Le Male to top global rankings, although we would expect a new pillar closer to FY28. Rabanne should introduce a new pillar in FY27 to reinvigorate the brand following no major men's launch since Phantom in FY21. We also expect Carolina Herrera to build the recently launched La Bomba through flankers, with potential for a men's extension, given the brand's women's blockbusters have historically been followed by masculine launches.
- Interparfums is set to build out new pillars across its largest brands, including Jimmy Choo, Coach, Montblanc, and Lacoste, alongside the launch of Longchamp.
- Coty plans to launch a Swarovski fragrance in 2027, while focusing its prestige strategy on a set of key growth bets next year. At the same time, it is increasing marketing support behind Burberry and Hugo Boss and sharpening its mass-market portfolio around core brands and priority markets.

A key uncertainty around blockbuster launches is whether they can bring new consumers into the brand, rather than simply cannibalising existing pillars. Puig has suggested that La Bomba is attracting a different consumer from the traditional Good Girl audience, which we would attribute to its distinct scent profile.

Mists are also a recruitment opportunity. Coty has said the category resonates with the youngest Gen Z consumers, who do not yet engage meaningfully with traditional fragrances, and aligns with the scent-layering trend. The economics are attractive too, with gross margins comparable to the Prestige division's 71% level in FY25. The category is gaining traction, with L'Oréal expanding Valentino and Lancôme into mists, Puig recently launching the format at Penhaligon's and Byredo, and Interparfums at DKNY. While still dominated by non-fragrance players such as L'Occitane, Bath & Body Works, and Victoria's Secret, we see clear scope for traditional fragrance players to gain share as the category develops.

Valuation and risks

L'Oréal; Buy, €435 12m price target
Valuation methodology: We are Buy rated. Our 12-month price target of €435 is derived from a blended DCF and multiple approach, each carrying a 50% weighting. Our DCF assumes a 7.1% WACC and 2.5% terminal growth, implying an intrinsic value of €445/share. Our multiples-based approach applies a 28x P/E multiple to our Q5-Q8 EPS estimates and implies a value of €429/share. We round to get to our PT of €435.

Key risks to our view and PT: (1) A slower-than-expected recovery in China following Daigou policy changes. (2) A slowdown in the US from macro headwinds or consumer trends driving challenging conditions in the beauty market. (3) The shift to digital driving market share losses for L'Oréal as the barriers to entry are lowered. (4) FX volatility and overall consumer demand in key markets.

Puig; Buy, €21.50 12m price target
Valuation methodology: We are Buy rated. Our 12-month price target of €21.50 is derived from a blended DCF and multiple approach, each carrying a 50% weighting. Our DCF assumes a 8.5% WACC and 2.5% terminal growth, implying an intrinsic value of €22.50/share. Our multiples-based approach applies a 16.5x P/E multiple to our Q5-Q8 EPS estimates and implies a value of €20.50/share. We round to get to our PT of €21.50.

Key risks to our view and PT: (1) Fragrance demand could be volatile in an economic downturn. (2) Competition remains intense and Puig remains heavily reliant on a handful of large franchises. (3) Puig's push into niche fragrances could increase portfolio complexity and require even higher A&P spending. (4) Execution risk around the integration of acquired assets, and the possibility of overpaying for assets in a competitive market. (5) Expansion in China and broader Asia could be costly and slow to scale. (6) FX movements. (7) Tariffs.

Interparfums Inc, Buy, $110 12m price target
Valuation methodology: Our 12-month price target of $110 is derived from a blended DCF and multiple approach, each carrying a 50% weighting. Our DCF assumes an 8.6% WACC and 2.5% terminal growth, implying an intrinsic value of $107.6. Our multiples-based approach applies a 20x P/E multiple to our Q5-Q8 EPS estimates and implies a value of $111.7. We are Buy rated.

Key risks to our view and PT: (1) Fragrance demand could be volatile into an economic downturn. (2) High dependence on new launches which can inflate marketing and pressure margins if sell-out underperforms sell-in. (3) Highly competitive industry and bidding against global beauty majors may push up minimum royalties and marketing requirements. (4) Fakes or dupes can erode pricing power and brand equity. (5) Loss of a major license could negatively impact earnings. (6) FX volatility and overall consumer demand in key markets.

Interparfums SA, Buy, €35 12m price target
Valuation methodology: Our 12-month price target of €35 is derived from a blended DCF and multiple approach, each carrying a 50% weighting. GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our universe of rated stocks) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

For a more detailed description of how we calculate the GS Factor Profile, please contact your GS representative.

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Early-Stage Biotech, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region manages Regional Conviction Lists, which are selected from Buy rated stocks on the respective region's Investment Lists and represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction Lists are managed by the Investment Review Committee or other designated committee in each respective region and do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) are removed pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Early-Stage Biotech (ES). An investment rating and a target price are not assigned pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when this company has neither a drug, treatment or medical device that has passed a Phase II clinical trial nor a license to distribute a post-Phase II drug, treatment or medical device. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company.
