JNJ's recently launched oral psoriasis pill, Icotyde, represents a key new product cycle in the company's immunology franchise that management has framed as having the potential to be one of the company's largest products ever, making it a crucial piece of the puzzle for the company's stated goal toward double digit revenue growth by the end of the decade. Following FDA approval in March for moderate-to-severe plaque psoriasis, on the 1Q26 earnings call in mid-April, JNJ highlighted positive early launch indicators, noting 1,500 patients with prescriptions had been written with over 1,000 unique prescribers; subsequently, on June 9th at our healthcare conference, the company disclosed that prescriber count had grown to ~4,500, representing a steep ramp. The company has said that IQVIA is not yet capturing all channels, suggesting public script data may be underestimating actual demand. JNJ's 2Q26 earnings results next week (see our preview here) represent the first full quarter of Icotyde sales, and we expect management to provide updated launch metrics, although not yet break out product level sales. In addition to psoriasis, Icotyde is also being developed in psoriatic arthritis (PsA), ulcerative colitis (UC) and Crohn's disease (CD) and management has previously said that Icotyde will be a meaningful revenue driver by 2027, at an enterprise level.

To assess Icotyde's launch progress and longer-term positioning, we conducted a proprietary survey last week of 26 dermatologists. We note the following key takeaways:

1. Dermatologists expect Icotyde prescriptions for moderate-to-severe psoriasis patients to ramp significantly — from ~2-3% currently to ~8-10% in 1 year, and to 15-20% over 5 years.
2. Icotyde is seen as most apt for patients new to branded systemics or switches from other oral brands (e.g. AMGN's Otezla and BMY's Sotyktu). While switching from other branded orals to Icotyde is expected, not as much switching is expected from injectable IL-23 or IL-17 agents. Injectable IL-23 agents (e.g. ABBV's Skyrizi and JNJ's Tremfya) are still preferred for ~50% of new patients.

3. Key factors for prescribing are efficacy and oral administration, and Icotyde's fasting requirement has not been a barrier.

Overall, we see the survey results as consistent with JNJ (and ABBV) messaging that Icotyde is likely to expand the psoriasis treatment market and not detract from IL-23 injectables (such as Tremfya and Skyrizi). Notably, if Icotyde achieves the 15-20% market share indicated by the KOLs in our survey, this could support $10bn+ peak revenue (vs. GSe $7.7bn/ Visible Alpha consensus data $7.1bn), with potential upside from other indications such as PsA, UC and CD.

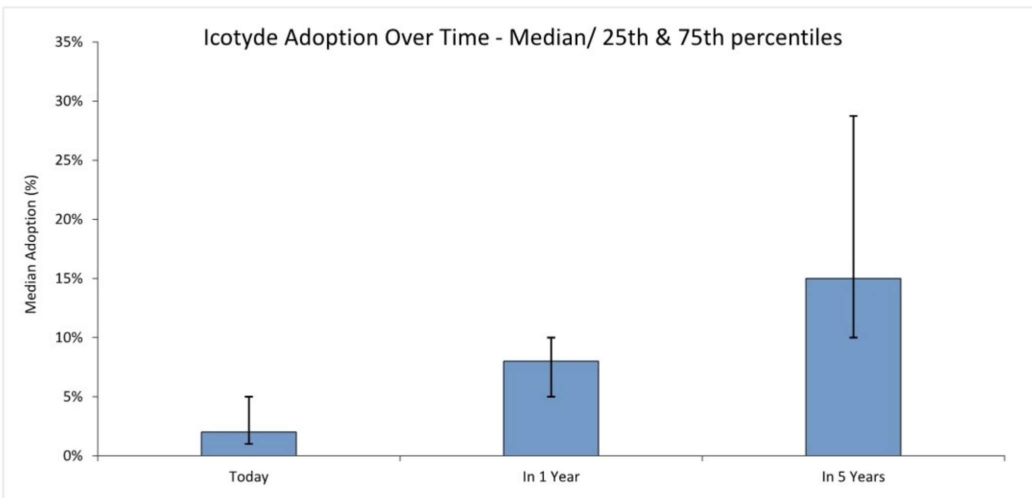
Details within.

Detailed Icotyde KOL Survey Results

We surveyed 26 dermatologists who each treat a minimum of 100 moderate-to-severe psoriasis patients and have prescribed multiple branded systemics in the past year.

Q1. What % of your moderate/severe psoriasis patients have you prescribed Icotyde as of today? What % do you anticipate in 1 year? In 5 years?

Exhibit 1: Dermatologists Expect to Ramp Up Icotyde Prescribing for Moderate-to-Severe Psoriasis Patients

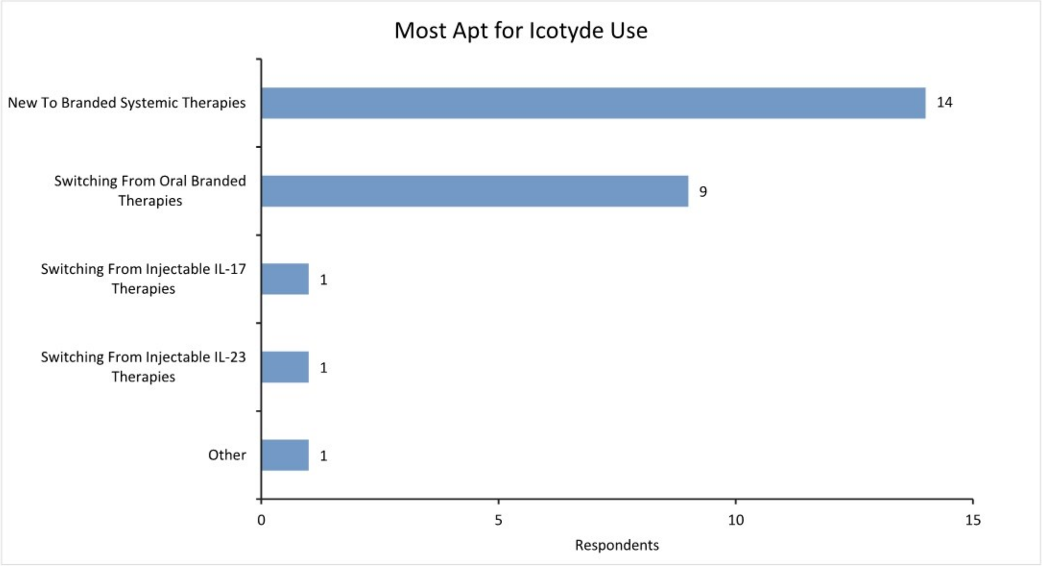


Source: Data compiled by Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research, Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research

Dermatologists indicated they have prescribed Icotyde to an average/median percent of their eligible populations today of 3%/2%, and that is expected to grow to 10%/8% in 1 year and 19%/15% in 5 years. Interestingly, observing the 25th and 75th percentiles, while the 25th percentile followed a similar ramp (from 1% to 5% to 10%), the 75th percentile indicated a skew up to 29% in 5 years — this suggests to us that a number of physicians see Icotyde being utilized more heavily over time, representing potential upside.

Q2. What existing population of moderate/severe psoriasis patients do you see as being most apt to using Icotyde?

Exhibit 2: Icotyde Patients Primarily Expected to be Either New to Branded Systemic or Switching from Oral Branded

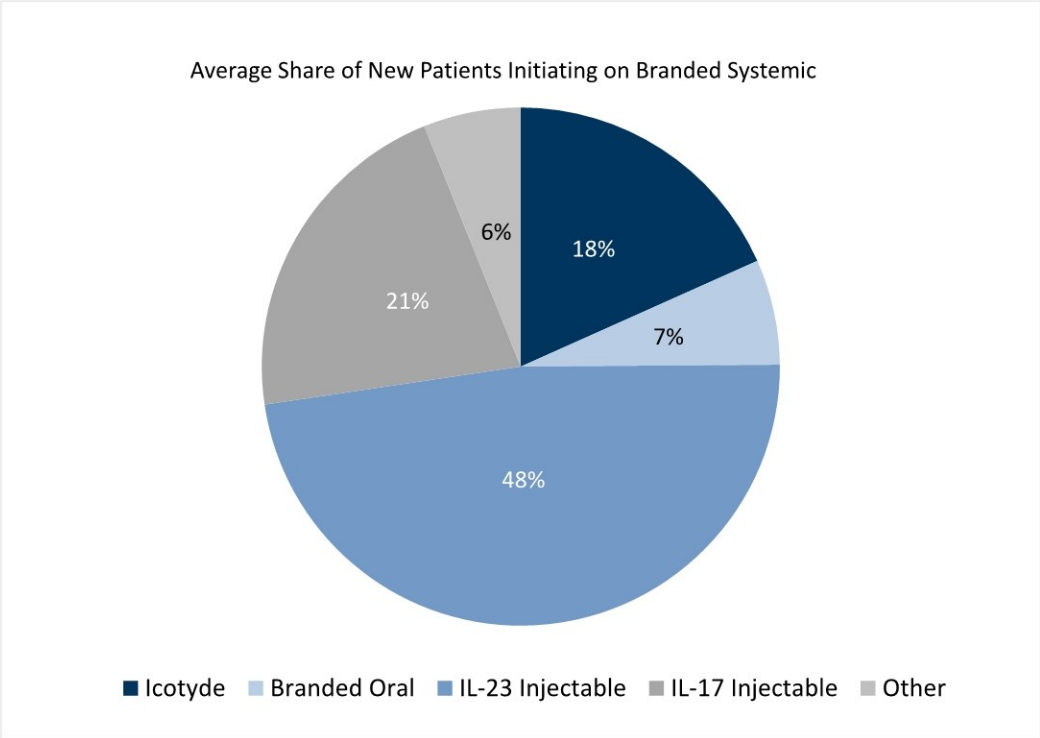


Source: Data compiled by Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research, Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research

We see these survey responses as consistent with JNJ's commentary of Icotyde vis a vis Tremfya (and ABBV's commentary vis a vis Skyrizi). JNJ has noted that Icotyde is positioned as a first-line systemic therapy, apt to capture patients transitioning from topical treatments or existing oral therapies (e.g. Otezla or Sotyktu) who are hesitant to start injectable biologics. Management believes that the introduction of an oral IL-23 peptide will expand the advanced systemic market rather than take Tremfya's share. At our Global Healthcare Conference, JNJ noted that ~60% of early Icotyde patients were systemic treatment-naive and ~25% of patients were switching from existing oral treatments, directionally consistent with our survey.

Q3. Among NEW patients initiating on a branded systemic agent, what percent would you anticipate prescribing the following:

Exhibit 3: IL-23 and IL-17 Injectables are Still Favored Overall for Moderate-to-Severe Psoriasis Patients

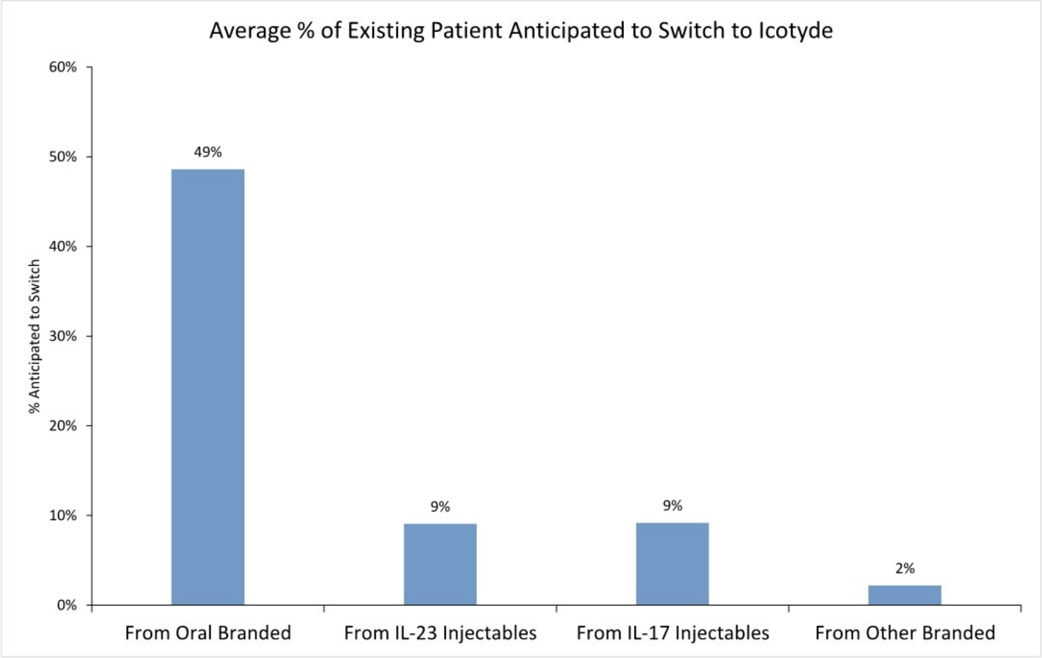


Source: Data compiled by Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research

Consistent with responses to the prior question, injectable IL-23 agents (such as Tremfya and Skyrizi) were indicated to be favored for roughly half of new patients on average. Our survey indicated dermatologists on average slightly leaned towards injectable IL-17 as the next choice, although closely followed by Icotyde.

Q4. Among EXISTING patients, what % do you anticipate would switch to Icotyde... from oral branded therapies? From branded injectables?

Exhibit 4: Significant Switching is Expected from Other Oral Branded Options, but Not from IL-23 or IL-17 Injectables

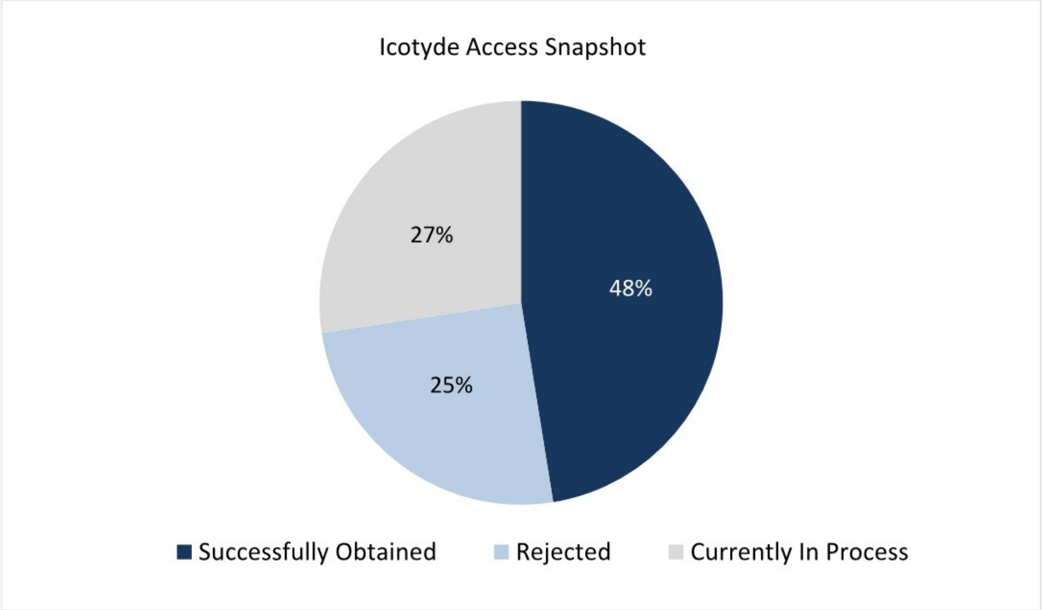


Source: Data compiled by Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research

While roughly half of patients on oral branded therapies (e.g. Otezla and Sotyktu) are anticipated to switch to Icotyde (which seems logical to us given higher efficacy with similar dosing), only a single digit percent of patients on existing injectable IL-23 or IL-17 agents would be anticipated to switch (also logical, as we understand physicians are hesitant to switch patients who are stable on existing therapy, and the injectables generally offer convenient profiles with monthly to quarterly dosing).

Q5. What have been the insurance coverage/ access results for your patients that have you attempted to prescribe Icotyde?

Exhibit 5: Dermatologists Suggest the Access Success Rate is 2:1, Albeit Early Days with Many Still in Process

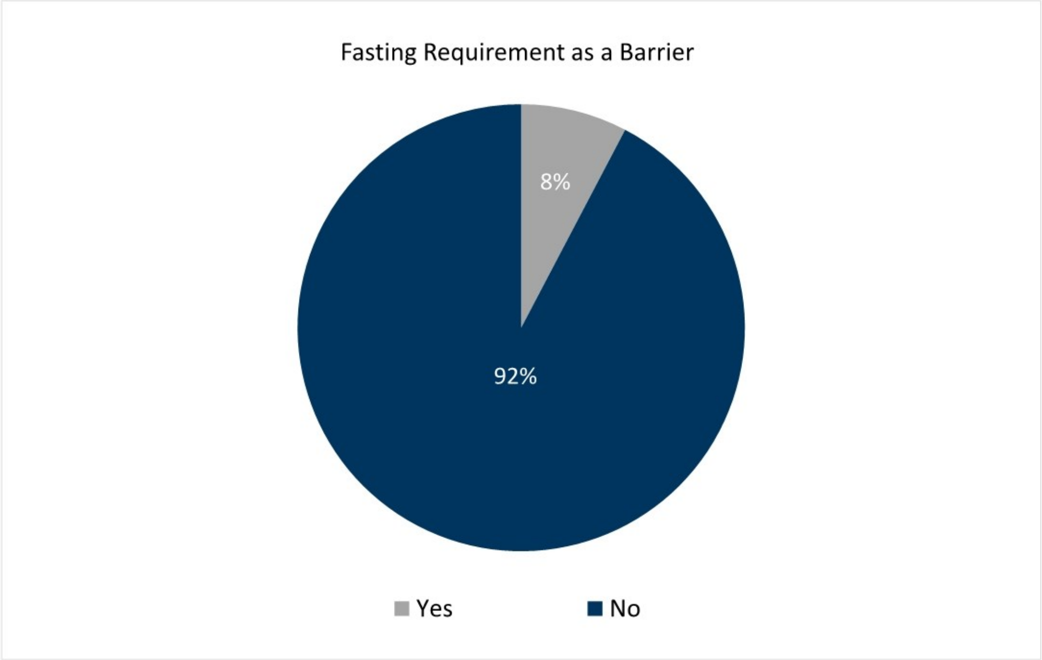


Source: Data compiled by Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research

We view the survey indication of roughly half of prescribed patients successfully accessing Icotyde as encouraging, representing a 2:1 success ratio, with many prescriptions still in progress. We see this as likely to improve further as the launch matures and physicians/payors gain more experience and become more familiar with navigating the logistics.

Q6. Has the 30-minute fasting dosing been a barrier to prescribing?

Exhibit 6: The 30-minute Fasting Post Dosing Has Overwhelmingly Not Been a Barrier

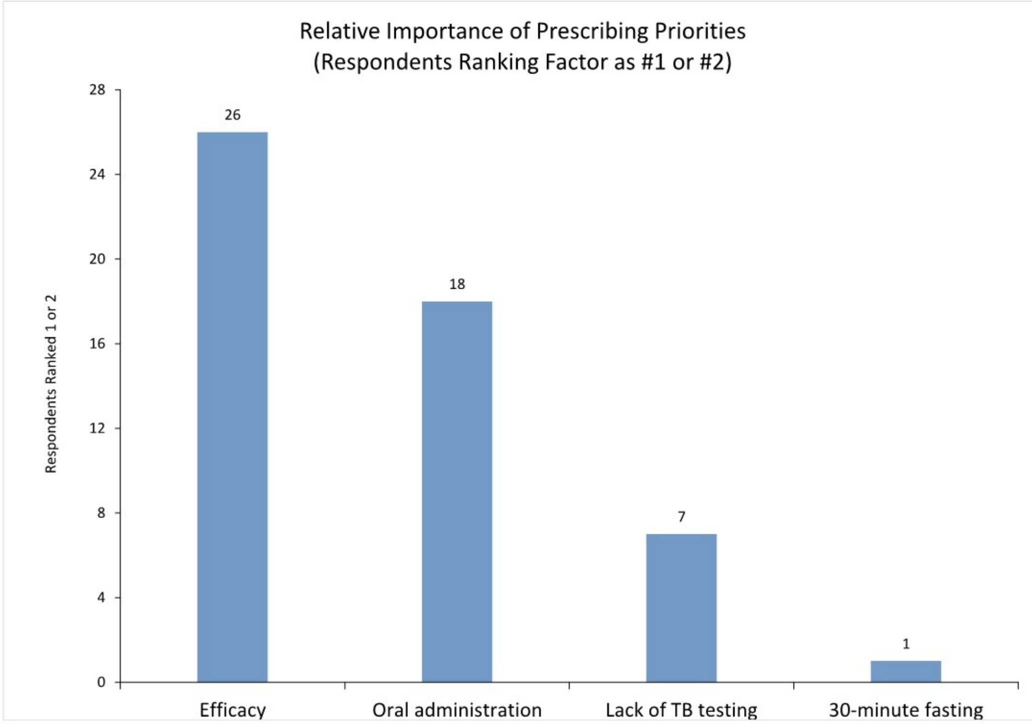


Source: Data compiled by Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research

Encouragingly, the vast majority of physicians do not consider the food effect/ fasting element to be a barrier to prescribing Icotyde.

Q7. Rank the relative importance of the following factors you would consider for prescribing:

Exhibit 7: Efficacy and Oral Administration are the Top Drivers of Icotyde Prescribing



Source: Data compiled by Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research

We see the survey indication of dermatologists' prescribing factors as logical and consistent with the other survey responses, with efficacy and oral administration as the top factors. From an efficacy perspective, Icotyde places above other existing oral therapies, although shy of injectable IL-23s — however is able to offer oral differentiation. Lack of TB testing was seen as a less important factor, and 30-minute fasting was seen as least important.

Valuation and Risks

Valuation: We arrive at our 12-month price target of $275 based on a 20x P/E multiple on our Q5-Q8 EPS.

Key downside risks: The ramp of new products could be slower than we expect, resulting in less revenue to replenish declining products. Further uncertainty related to the Talc litigation could result in higher-than-expected payouts and hamper multiples. A more-difficult-to-navigate external environment related to macro and tariffs could create downside to our estimates.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our universe of rated stocks) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

For a more detailed description of how we calculate the GS Factor Profile, please contact your GS representative.

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Early-Stage Biotech, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region manages Regional Conviction Lists, which are selected from Buy rated stocks on the respective region's Investment Lists and represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction Lists are managed by the Investment Review Committee or other designated committee in each respective region and do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) are removed pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Early-Stage Biotech (ES). An investment rating and a target price are not assigned pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when this company has neither a drug, treatment or medical device that has passed a Phase II clinical trial nor a license to distribute a post-Phase II drug, treatment or medical device. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company.
