Urban Renewal Plan for 15th FYP a potential boost to housing demand

The 15th FYP for Urban Renewal is outlined

Yesterday, China's State Council issued Urban Renewal 15th Five-Year Plan, highlighting the shift from large-scale incremental construction to tapping the value of existing urban stock, prioritizing quality improvement, operational efficiency and functional optimization. The plan aims to build safe, green, smart, resilient, and people-centered modern cities by 2030. It also underscores coordinated development between urban renewal, industrial upgrading, cultural heritage preservation and risk prevention. We see several areas of acceleration (esp. the renovation for urban dilapidated housing, old blocks and factory areas, and underground pipeline network) and niche fields of development (Exhibit 1) in the outlined urban renewal targets for the 15th FYP. We roughly calculate Rmb4-5tn incremental investment scale against 14th Five-year Plan. Compared with shantytown redevelopment period (concentrated during 2015-2019), total investment is about Rmb7.5tn, with incremental investment about Rmb6tn+ compared to the preceding 5 years. The incremental investment this round would be equivalent to 66% of our estimated average property FAI in 2026E-27E, which is similar to 69% if we compare the incremental investment last round against property FAI in 2014.

Funding/execution remains the key to watch, possible to be front loaded to buffer economic downside

In addition, we believe funding will remain the focus for the market. According the Plan, the investment will be fulfilled through 1) Local fiscal and credit support: LGSBs (per our macro team's estimate, Rmb4.4tn issuance for 2026E, on-track by YTD-26) are approved as project capital for eligible urban renewal projects, while commercially viable and well-controlled projects can also access syndicated loans and comprehensive development financing; 2) Capital markets tools: the Plan promotes the issuance of Infrastructure REITs and ABS for urban renewal usages, while eligible entities are also encouraged to tap debt markets via corporate bonds and MTNs; 3) Private Participation: policymakers emphasized standardizing Public-Private Partnerships (PPP) to incentivize private sector involvement, complemented by a steady advancement of public utility price reforms; 4) Land revitalization investments: the plan emphasizes relaxations in facilitating land-use conversion and functional building upgrades, encouraging multi-entity cooperative renovations and reducing the tax burden on land consolidation and joint developments, as well as diversifying land supply through long-term leasing, lease-to-own models, and flexible-term arrangements. We will closely monitor the changes to assess the real impact, and we would not rule out the possibility of front loading this plan in the earlier part of the coming 5 years to support housing demand recovery.

The importance to form a positive feedback loop

We have previously highlighted the necessity to form a positive feedback loop that supports the property market and urban consumption, and we view the newly released Plan as an important step to see that happen. A broader job market recovery would help stimulate housing demand in the mass market, which is not being seen even in top tier cities such as Shanghai and Shenzhen where we are relatively more positive.

Key takeaways: More clarity in urban renewal targets outlined for next 5 years and beyond

Core objectives of the Urban Renewal 15th Five-Year Plan

- By 2030: Urban renewal initiatives to deliver tangible outcomes, with key improvements in strengthened urban safety system and governance capabilities, improved residential and public living environments, revitalized idle industrial assets and cultural heritage sites, and the transition from the traditional urban construction model largely completed.
- By 2035: A mature urban renewal system will be fully established. Cities will become innovative, livable, eco-friendly, disaster-resilient, culturally vibrant and digitally intelligent, with balanced advances in industrial transformation, green low-carbon development and cultural inheritance.
- By numbers: Policymakers quantified key 2026–2030 targets, including: on the residential side 1) complete renovation of 500k dilapidated residential units (vs. 250k in 14th FYP) to eliminate potential safety hazards; 2) initiate comprehensive upgrades for 115k old urban communities (vs. 240k in 14th FYP), and renovations for 4k urban villages (vs. 4.1k in 14th FYP); on the public space and urban facility side 1) revitalize and upgrade 1,500 old blocks and factory areas (vs. 900 in 14th FYP); 2) initiate construction and upgrades of sports facilities totaling 128k hectares (vs. 12k in 14th FYP) and urban parks and green spaces totaling 20k hectares; 3) Implement construction and upgrades of 770k km of aged urban pipelines (amongst renovations accounting for 365k km, vs. 250k km in 14th FYP), and 50k existing emergency shelters will be renovated.

Key priorities under the 15th FYP:

Investment and financing mechanisms: 1) Local fiscal and credit support: LGSBs (Rmb4.4tn issuance for 2026E, on-track by YTD-26) are approved as project capital for eligible urban renewal projects, while commercially viable and well-controlled projects can also access syndicated loans and comprehensive development financing; 2) Capital markets tools: the plan encourages Infrastructure REITs, ABS, corporate bonds and MTNs to fund urban renewal initiatives; 3) Private sector participation: regulated PPP models will be used to draw private investment, supported by ongoing public utility pricing reforms.; 4) Ancillary land policies: Rules are relaxed for land use conversion and building functional upgrades. Authorities will support joint renovation by multiple parties, cut taxes for land consolidation and joint development, and diversify land supply via long-term leasing, lease-to-own and flexible land tenure schemes.

Housing system reform & upgrading: 1) Affordable housing: Expand supply to meet basic housing needs for low- and middle-income groups, and ease housing pressures for new urban residents and young people.; 2) Housing upgrades: Adopt city-tailored policies to increase supply of upgraded housing; 3) High-quality green & smart Housing: Roll out quality improvement programs covering design, materials, construction and post-operation management. The plan promotes prefabricated retrofits, age-friendly and barrier-free renovations, high-performance building materials and digital home solutions for both new and existing residences.

Other key urban renewal initiatives:

- Revitalize existing assets: Conduct full surveys and categorized disposal of idle land and stalled projects. Underused old factories, commercial properties, offices and public housing will be fully repurposed.
- Old community renovation: Prioritize upgrades for residential communities aged 20 years or older. Works include improving common area and public services, and installing elevators where feasible. Long-term property management systems will be put in place to sustain operating quality.
- Industrial & consumption facilities upgrades: Restructure old commercial districts, residential areas and idle factory zones to build innovation hubs. Authorities will also upgrade consumption infrastructure to foster growth in the silver economy, ice-snow economy, low-altitude economy, event economy and experience economy, lifting overall urban consumption.
- Green, low-carbon & infrastructure upgrades: Beyond pipeline renovations, the plan advances ecological restoration, sponge city development, green buildings and ultra-low energy consumption construction. Urban green spaces will also be expanded to accelerate cities' low-carbon transition.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our universe of rated stocks) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

For a more detailed description of how we calculate the GS Factor Profile, please contact your GS representative.

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock’s total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Early-Stage Biotech, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region manages Regional Conviction Lists, which are selected from Buy rated stocks on the respective region’s Investment Lists and represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction Lists are managed by the Investment Review Committee or other designated committee in each respective region and do not represent a change in the analysts’ investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.
