For the first time since 1994, the FIFA World Cup returns to North America as the United States, Canada and Mexico jointly host the 2026 tournament. This is likely to be the largest single-sport event in history, with 48 nations competing in 104 matches across 16 cities, of which the majority (78 matches and 11 cities) will be in the United States. Much of this is driven by the expansion of the tournament from 32 to 48 teams and from 64 to 104 matches. The tournament expansion is expected to drive higher fan participation, travel flows and global media engagement. Early indications are positive as evidenced by the 500M ticket requests for ~7M available seats or an oversubscription ratio of ~70x (see Report by our Internet Research team). According to FIFA, 6.5M people are expected to attend matches, with ~$14B of event-related expenditures (see Report) driving some $17.2B of GDP for the US alone.

Trade Recommendations. While anticipation for the tournament is high, expectations for likely beneficiaries are quite low given a challenging macro backdrop, geopolitical uncertainty and growing concerns about the low-end consumer. Given the magnitude of this approaching catalyst, we expect market sentiment to improve. We therefore recommend going tactically long our 2026 World Cup Beneficiaries Basket (JPRWC26B <Index>) created in conjunction with input from our broader Equity Research department to best capture World Cup spending. Key basket exposures include Secondary Ticketing, Lodging, Rideshare & Food, Advertising, Apparel and Car Rentals. For investors seeking medium term exposure to the theme, we recommend exposure to a basket of 2026 World Cup Sponsors (JPRWC26S <Index>) as a potential source of outperformance given the strong relative performance of World Cup Sponsors through the past two events (see Figure 4). Key risks include weaker tourism revenue if consumers forego concerts, entertainment and non-host city travel to focus on the World Cup (see Report), changes to US immigration policy and geopolitical headwinds.

Sectors and Industries. In the US, value-added gains are expected to be led by Accommodation & Food ($2.4B), Real Estate ($2.0B), and Wholesale & Retail (~$1.5B, see Report). Therefore, we expect the most upside capture across segments to be Secondary Ticketing, Online Travel and Lodging, Digital Advertising, Rideshare and Food Delivery, Advertising and Media, Airports, Car Rentals, Restaurants and Consumer. Our Lodging Research team estimates $910M in incremental US hotel room revenue connected to the World Cup, translating to 30-40bps of RevPAR growth. Further, host city RevPAR should increase 7-25% in June-July 2026 (see Report). For Advertising, as of our Internet team's report on the World Cup, they expect $5B of incremental global advertising spending, of which $4B should flow to digital channels (73% digital penetration). In terms of Rideshare/Food Delivery, our Internet team expects gross bookings to increase $377M and $73M, respectively. Lastly, we expect Rental Car companies to benefit on structurally favorable rental conversion with ~60% of matches located in sprawl/drive markets across the three countries (see Report).

Host Country Performance. During the 2022 World Cup, Qatar had a mixed experience given Covid-era travel hesitancy, limited hotel infrastructure, geographic location/lack of tourism multiplier. US/Canada/Mexico are better positioned to benefit from the event given a more developed ecosystem to absorb tourists. From an equity performance perspective, host-country equity returns around recent World Cups have been mixed: Qatar +10% (2022), Russia +5.4% (2018), and Brazil -19.5% (2014), all in USD and proxied off MSCI country indices relative to MSCI ACWI (see Figure 5). That said, the median host-country return sits at roughly +10% the year they host, likely underpinned by persistent tourism effects, stronger consumer sentiment, and scope for higher FDI/investment inflows.

We thank Soham Kabra, of J.P. Morgan India Private Limited, for his significant contribution to this report.

Company-Specific Disclosures: J.P. Morgan does and seeks to do business with companies covered in its research reports. As a result, investors should be aware that the firm may have a conflict of interest that could affect the objectivity of this report. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision. Important disclosures, including price charts and credit opinion history tables (if applicable), are available for compendium reports and all J.P. Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock’s expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts’ coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst’s coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan’s Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
