MLCC eXchange: June 2026 trade data; will this be a summer of price hikes?

Japan Customs released the June 2026 trade statistics at 09:30 JST on July 30. We believe MLCC export trends by nation and region visible in the data shed some light on trends by application. In June, MLCC export volume followed seasonal patterns, while export value slightly exceeded seasonal trends. The trend line shows that export value continued to grow on a yen basis, as well as at a moderate pace on a US dollar basis, with double-digit YoY growth sustained on a 3MMA basis. Average selling price (in US dollars) also continues on a moderate uptrend. For automotive applications, export value to the US (in US dollars) is showing a moderate upward trend, while export value to Europe are exhibiting a slight downward trend, resulting in regional differences. Overall, the trend is shifting from flat to moderate growth. For IT applications, the overall uptrend continues. By region, export value to Taiwan declined MoM in June, but the overall upward trend remains intact. Our top pick among MLCC names is Murata Mfg.

Our view

- We have not changed our longer-term view on MLCC industry fundamentals, but the share prices of Japanese MLCC manufacturers (Murata Mfg, Taiyo Yuden, TDK) underwent a significant correction after peaking in mid-June. For MLCC stocks, especially Murata Mfg and Taiyo Yuden, market conditions for MLCCs began to tighten in earnest in late January–March, and over the following 2-3 months through June, the equity market quickly priced in 3-4 years of future earnings growth potential. Valuations have also declined to levels below the upper end of their historical ranges, and now appear to be at levels that can be explained by earnings two or three years out.
- On the fundamentals side, supply-demand conditions tightened further, especially for mid- and high-end MLCCs. Each company is moving to increase production of MLCCs for AI servers, and as some manufacturers prioritize supply for AI servers, we expect supply of general-purpose and mid-range products to become even tighter heading into July–September. Concerns about MLCC supply-demand tightness and shortages are also rising among set manufacturers.
- In the MLCC market, negotiations for annual contracts for cutting-edge products for AI servers in 2027 and price hike notifications to distributors are beginning to ramp up. Meanwhile, we believe some MLCC manufacturers are moving to start price hike negotiations with major direct customers over the summer, and we will closely monitor developments. Our channel checks indicate that some MLCC users are beginning to accept price increases from MLCC makers in order to secure volumes. In addition, some MLCC manufacturers have started negotiations for annual contracts in 2027 that involve significant price hikes not only for AI servers but also with major EMS, OEM, and ODM customers. We will continue to monitor the progress of these negotiations.
- Some MLCC manufacturers have begun negotiations on price hikes due to supply-demand tightness, and we are watching closely to see how MLCC manufacturers will react to this trend. We believe that if manufacturers do not follow through on price hikes, they risk receiving a concentration of orders for unprofitable products, resulting in a situation where they are busy but not profitable.

- If Japanese MLCC manufacturers raise prices in reaction to supply-demand tightness, we expect the psychological hurdle for negotiating price hikes to decrease for other electronic components, especially passive components.

Summary of statistics

- In June 2026, total export volume was 88.957 billion units (+6.5% YoY, +6.1% MoM), export value was $448 million (+18.2% YoY, +8.9% MoM), and the average selling price was $0.50 (+11.0% YoY, +2.6% MoM) (Figure 2). Over the past 10 years, seasonality has typically seen export volume rise 8.6% MoM and export value rise 4.9% MoM, but this June, volume followed seasonal patterns while value slightly exceeded seasonal trends. The trend line, however, shows export value remained on a growth trend on a yen basis. We maintain our view that a moderate upward trend continues in dollar terms. Total shipment value for April-June rose 14% QoQ in yen terms and 13% in US dollar terms, and increased 26% YoY in yen terms and 14% YoY in US dollar terms, maintaining strong momentum.
- Automotive applications have a high weighting within exports to Europe (Germany, the Netherlands) and the US, and for these destinations, export volume was 9.995 billion units (+19.3% YoY, +16.2% MoM), export value was $74.2 million (+6.3% YoY, +17.6% MoM), and the average selling price was $0.74 (-10.9% YoY, +1.2% MoM). Over the past 10 years, seasonality has seen export volume rise 1.9% MoM and export value rise 1.2% MoM, but this June, both increased well above seasonal trends. The trend line shows export volume is rising slightly, but export value in US dollar terms remains flat. For export value, shipments to the US show a moderate upward trend, while those to Europe are on a slight downward trend, resulting in regional differences.
- For major Asian markets with a high weighting of IT applications (China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, South Korea, Vietnam, the Philippines, and India), export volume was 71.595 billion units (+2.9% YoY, +4.4% MoM), export value was $323.1 million (+20.1% YoY, +7.7% MoM), and the average selling price was $0.45 (+16.7% YoY, +3.1% MoM). Seasonality over the past 10 years has seen export volume rise 10.0% MoM and export value rise 6.6% MoM, but this June, export volume fell short while export value generally tracked seasonal trends. In US dollar terms, export value to China in June was relatively strong, rising 12.2% YoY and 10.3% MoM. Although exports to Taiwan declined MoM, they remain on an upward trend. For exports to Taiwan, the average selling price rose sharply in June to $0.54 (+57.9% YoY, +15.5% MoM). Exports to Hong Kong have also shown signs of a minor recovery since around last summer, while exports to South Korea remain flat.

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period. J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
