

Equity Strategy - Who Owns What

Positioning risk, but Europe not in a bad spot

★ SIGNATURE

Record inflows & extended HF/CTA longs limit positioning cushion. And while strong earnings support equities, Fed/rate jitters & adverse seasonality warrant hedges, with oil a wild card. Momo bounce likely post 2nd largest drawdown, but crowding still high. Less Tech-centric flows aid Europe/Value.

Equity positioning near the highs. Long only equity flows were very strong again in July (albeit skewed by record China inflows), at $129bn, even as retail participation softened and sentiment indicators like AAIL bull-bear and fear/greed index moderated considerably. However, after modest unwind in June, HFs and systematics longs crept up again, pushing up aggregate equity positioning near the highs. Ytd global equity inflows stand at $659bn, the highest on our record.

Strong earnings keep X-asset dynamics tilted towards equities...Equities continued to attract more inflows than bonds in July, while cash once again saw outflows. For now, corporate fundamentals remain supportive and Q2 earnings are tracking well ahead of expectations. So EPS revisions remain healthy, underpinning continued equity inflows and preference over bonds.

...but macro/technical risks warrant hedging. Despite renewed tensions in the US-Iran conflict, investors remain largely sanguine on inflation risks, as reflected in rising oil short positions and muted inflows into TIPS. Yet, financial conditions continue to tighten, with Fed rate hike expectations moving higher and US real yields approaching levels that have historically become a headwind for equities. Rates positioning reflects this shift, with CTAs turning short Treasuries and speculators adding to shorts at the long end. However, as increasingly hawkish central banks and elevated oil volatility coincide with softer summer liquidity, lower mutual fund cash levels and unfavourable mid-term election seasonality, tactical hedging seems wise given current limited positioning cushion.

Less US-centric equity flows benefit Europe. US equity inflows have slowed to the lowest level since March, helping to reduce concentration and performance of non-US equities. In Europe, nascent signs of pick-up in inflows are visible, especially from US investors, with periphery seemingly preferred over core. Diversification away from Tech/AI exposure is helping the region, with higher oil risks contained for now. EM saw most demand in July, albeit driven largely by domestic Chinese demand. Korean flows remain healthy, even as levered ETFs assets decline and CTA exposure rolls over. Japan flows picked up modestly as well.

Factor swings see broadening gaining steam as Momo continues to falter. Factor rotation has seen market breadth improving the most since Covid in July. Over 70% of global stocks outperformed the index, lifting global funds' performance. However, Momentum drawdown has been sharp and painful, in fact the 2nd largest in Europe so far, and crowding has moderated. So potential for a reversal, although crowding is far from depressed, with CTA exposure and Tech inflows still high. Meanwhile, Value continues to outperform, underpinning Europe's relative strength, where investor flows have shifted toward AI-agnostic sectors such as Healthcare and Consumer Discretionary. However, funds remain heavily exposed to capex beneficiaries, including Semis, Utilities, Industrials and Materials, which hit returns in July. Banks remain crowded so a key support to performance in Europe, with Insurance seeing more bid again.

Key pain trades. Equities down, bonds up; Europe > US; Momentum down; AI winners & Taiwan/Korea down; AI agnostic sectors (Healthcare, Consumers) up; Banks down.

Guide to the Barclays Fundamental Equity Research Rating System:

Our coverage analysts use a relative rating system in which they rate stocks as Overweight, Equal Weight or Underweight (see definitions below) relative to other companies covered by the analyst or a team of analysts that are deemed to be in the same industry (the "industry coverage universe").

In addition to the stock rating, we provide industry views which rate the outlook for the industry coverage universe as Positive, Neutral or Negative (see definitions below). A rating system using terms such as buy, hold and sell is not the equivalent of our rating system. Investors should carefully read the entire research report including the definitions of all ratings and not infer its contents from ratings alone.

Stock Rating

Overweight - The stock is expected to outperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Equal Weight - The stock is expected to perform in line with the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Underweight - The stock is expected to underperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Rating Suspended - The rating and target price have been suspended temporarily due to market events that made coverage impracticable or to comply with applicable regulations and/or firm policies in certain circumstances including where the Investment Bank of Barclays Bank PLC is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving the company.

Industry View

Positive - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are improving.

Neutral - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are steady, neither improving nor deteriorating.

Negative - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are deteriorating.

Sustainable Investing Related Research: There is currently no globally accepted framework or definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) of, nor market consensus as to what constitutes a 'sustainable', 'ESG', 'green', 'climate-friendly' or an equivalent company, investment, strategy or consideration or what precise attributes are required to be eligible to be categorised by such terms. This means there are different ways to evaluate a company or an investment and so different values may be placed on certain sustainability credentials as well as adverse ESG-related impacts of companies and ESG controversies. The evolving nature of sustainable investing considerations, models and methodologies means it can be challenging to definitively and universally classify a company or investment under a sustainable investing label and there may be areas where such companies and investments could improve or where adverse ESG-related impacts or ESG controversies exist. The evolving nature of sustainable finance related regulations and the development of jurisdiction-specific regulatory criteria also means that there is likely to be a degree of divergence as to the interpretation of such terms in the market. We expect industry guidance, market practice, and regulations in this field to continue to evolve.

Any information, data, image, or other content including from a third party source contained, referred to herein or used for whatsoever purpose by Barclays or a third party (“Information”), in relation to any actual or potential ‘ESG’, ‘sustainable’ or equivalent objective, issue, factor or consideration is not intended to be relied upon for ESG or sustainability classification, regulatory regime or industry initiative purposes (“ESG Regimes”), unless otherwise stated. Nothing in these materials, including any images included therein, is intended to convey, suggest or indicate that Barclays considers or represents any product, service, person or body mentioned in these materials as meeting or qualifying for any ESG or sustainability classification, label or similar standards that may exist under ESG Regimes. Barclays has not conducted any assessment of compliance with ESG Regimes. Parties are reminded to make their own assessments for these purposes.
