SpaceX Overview & Highlights

Leadership Across Space, Connectivity, & AI

Company History & Milestones

The Next Frontier: Initiating Coverage with an Overweight Rating & $225 PT

Investment Thesis

- 1 SpaceX's mission leads to potentially the largest economic frontier ever. Mission to build the systems & tech to make life multi-planetary; Positioned to go after what SpaceX believes is a TAM of $28T+ across Space, Connectivity, & AI
- 2 Launch leadership is the key enabler & differentiator. SpaceX has completed ~670 orbital launches with 99%+ mission success rate across its Falcon rockets & has launched 80%+ of all mass to orbit since 2023; Starship V3 should represent a step function improvement in both affordability & throughput
- 3 Extreme vertical integration & engineering first culture. Speed/cost advantage is evident across rocket launches, satellite manufacturing, data center construction, & AI model training, among other areas; Engineering-first culture has resulted in a series of technological breakthroughs and industry-defining firsts
- 4 Starlink uniquely positioned to drive broadband market share, though we view mobile as less likely. SpaceX is the only company that controls the entire satellite value chain in house; Starlink is the world's largest LEO constellation with 9,600+ broadband & mobile satellites, serving 12M+ active customers across 164 countries, territories, & other markets
- 5 First terrestrial, then orbital – AI forecast to drive SpaceX. SpaceX operates a leading AI infrastructure footprint, frontier model, & scaled platform for real-time data & distribution; SpaceX continues to ramp terrestrial compute & appears to be the only company with a commercially viable path to building orbital AI compute at scale
- 6 Valuation upside supported by strong growth & margin expansion. We initiate coverage with an OW rating & a December 2027 PT of $225 based on ~41x our 2028E GAAP EPS of $5.50, supported by 44x 2028E EBIT & our SOTP; We believe SPCX offers a compelling risk/reward, with extreme vertical integration, a structural launch moat, & durable unit economics underpinning multi-year growth in what the company estimates to be the largest economic opportunity ever

1. Can SpaceX Scale Starship Launches to Deliver Massive Orbital Compute?

Our View

- Our launch forecast assumes SpaceX can gradually reach 5k annual Starship launches early next decade to support its planned orbital compute and communications requirements with additional capacity for lunar and Martian missions
- Our ramp is roughly consistent with management's intention to launch tens of Starships in 2027, hundreds in 2028, and thousands beyond
- The challenges to ramping starship come in two varieties, 1) Proving the capabilities of the rocket & 2) scaling the production system

2. Could Starlink Become a Direct Mobile Operator & What Are the Potential Lateral Impacts Across the Telecom Sector?

Our View

- We are constructive on Starlink Mobile's revenue trajectory, which we expect to be driven by MNO partnerships, IoT, and international DTC adoption
- We do not expect Starlink Mobile to take meaningful U.S. wireless share over our forecast period: 1) We do not expect SpaceX to secure a U.S. MVNO any time soon; 2) A standalone terrestrial build would take significant time & capital; 3) The consumer value proposition remains unclear; 4) We view the potential acquisition of a U.S. wireless carrier as unlikely

U.S. Industry Mobile Service Revenue Appears Fragmented

3. How Much US Market Share Can Starlink Take by 2030? What Impact Would That Have on the Broadband Ecosystem?

Our View

- We expect Starlink to emerge as a steady third share-taker in U.S. residential broadband, lifting satellite share from 3% today to 8% by 2030
- Core cohort should remain concentrated in copper-only & underinvested-cable markets, with limited L-T risk to fiber
- Serving this TAM hinges on orbital capacity; Starship will begin delivering V3 satellites, which offer ~11x the downlink capacity per satellite vs. V2-Mini

JPMe Estimated U.S. Starlink Broadband Subscribers

4. Can SpaceX Build Out 9GW of Terrestrial Compute by 2028?

Our View

- SpaceX has demonstrated the ability to build high-density compute capacity at breakneck pace with the initial phases of Colossus 1 & 2
- We estimate SpaceX will end 2026 with ~2.0GW, then add ~2.2GW in 2027, ~3.5GW in 2028, & ~1.2GW in 2029, reaching ~8.9GW
- Looking ahead, we believe SpaceX can achieve a build cost ~29-43% lower than peers by reducing redundant infrastructure, utilizing internal technologies, & capitalizing on talent-driven efficiencies

JPMc Estimated Timeline of Terrestrial Capacity (MW)

5. Data Centers in Space... Why Do They Make Sense and How Does SpaceX Plan to Build Them Out?

Our View

- The premise for orbital AI data centers is that demand for AI compute will surge while terrestrial capacity may struggle to keep pace due to land, power, & regulatory constraints
- We expect SpaceX to begin launching its first operational AI satellites in 2028, with 0.4GW online by the end of the year scaling to 75.1GW by the end of 2031
- Requires Starship launches to scale to the thousands on an annual basis by 2030 & 2031; Semiconductor industry will need to scale up chip supply

SpaceX Plans to Leverage Existing Satellite Expertise for AI Satellites

6. What Is the Anticipated AI Monetization Path Across Grok/Cursor & Neocloud?

Our View

- While Grok monetization is below peers, we expect the acquisition of Cursor & integration of Cursor data into Grok training to result in a more well-rounded model & should increase both enterprise & consumer adoption
- We believe the $/W of recent neocloud contracts (Anthropic & Google) are materially higher than current Grok monetization, and expect SpaceX to continue maximizing spare compute with additional agreements
- Overtime, we expect SpaceX to be bringing on enough capacity to meet the needs of both businesses

7. Could SpaceX Acquire or Combine w/Tesla?

Our View

- We see the possibility of a SpaceX-Tesla combination rising materially over the next 1-2 years, though we do not believe it is likely imminent
- Potential strategic logic appears compelling: vertical integration across AI, robotics, energy, transportation, & space, anchored by Terafab & a combined ~$28.5T TAM narrative on the SpaceX side
- Potential impediments include governance asymmetry, valuation gap, & regulatory complexity

Potential Deal Structures

All-Stock SpaceX-led Acquisition

- SpaceX issues new shares at a fixed conversion ratio & modest premium
- We believe likely best reconciles the valuation gap while avoiding a large cash outlay
- Most probable in our view

NewCo/HoldCo Roll-Up

- Both entities fold into a newly formed parent
- Could offer cleaner “merger of equals” optics & ease minority-holder concerns
- We’d expect exchange ratios to still likely skew toward SpaceX in such a scenario

Cash & Stock Hybrid

- Could deliver a sharper premium & accelerate approval
- We’d view as less likely N-T since any cash outlay would likely further strain leverage/FCF against SpaceX’s AI-heavy capex

Phased/Partial Combination

- Could de-risk the likely regulatory & governance hurdles
- Could provide a longer runway toward what we think may ultimately be an all but inevitable combination

8. How Does SpaceX Plan To Fund Its Massive AI Infrastructure Compute Buildout?

Our View

- We'd frame SpaceX's heavy investments as coming from a position of strength against a very large & unique opportunity set
- Cash-generative legacy businesses (Space & Connectivity) help fund the AI build, supplemented by ~$375B of modeled debt proceeds over 2026-2030
- We do not model positive FCF until 2031, and any cost overruns or scale delays could extend the magnitude & duration of the burn while also increasing capital raise requirements

JPMe SpaceX Debt Flow vs. FCF, 2023A to 2031E

9. Can SpaceX Hit $1T of Revenue in 2030-2031?

Our View

- Elon Musk has said he believes SpaceX may be able to reach ~$1T of revenue in 2030 and that he would be surprised if revenue were not >$1T in 2031
- Reaching the $1T milestone in 2031 is possible, in our view, but requires strong execution across an ambitious timeframe
- While focus tends to fall on the potential downside risks, we project 2031 revenue of $956B, only ~5% from the $1T milestone; we believe the building blocks are identifiable & bridging the gap is potentially achievable

Potential Sources of Upside to JPMe 2030-2031 Revenue

Segment	Upside Vector	Driver
AI	Faster compute scaling	Faster Starship ramp, Starship V4 (~200t payload capacity), higher AI satellite compute density
AI	Higher revenue per watt	Improved Grok monetization across Enterprise & Consumer, higher third party hosting rates
Connectivity	IoT	Greater device penetration of the ~47B IoT devices expected by 2031
Connectivity	Mobile Direct-to-Consumer	Sooner than expected MVNO with a U.S. wireless carrier or faster traction within the U.S. market
Connectivity	U.S. Broadband	Higher penetration of addressable households incl. higher adoption in fiber markets
Space	New & emerging markets	In-orbit manufacturing, point-to-point transport, Lunar economy

10. Dream The Dream... What Else Could SpaceX Do Over Time?

Our View

- We believe SpaceX has a proven track record of leveraging its differentiated capabilities across launch, engineering, & manufacturing to unlock and scale entirely new markets
- SpaceX has identified several emerging or novel markets that it believes can eventually represent multi-trillion dollar opportunities
- While these are unproven, L-T opportunities with significant technological, economic, & regulatory challenges, we believe SpaceX is uniquely positioned to address them

New Market Opportunities

In-Orbit Opportunities

- Recent demo of Starfall highlights opportunity across in-space manufacturing & point-to-point global logistics & transport
- Starfall is a re-entry vehicle designed to safely return payloads from space to Earth
- Potential demand from a wide range of industries for in-space manufacturing, as well as the U.S. government

Scaling the Lunar Economy

- Goal of establishing a sustainable lunar presence
- Would serve as a proving ground for scientific exploration, industrialization, and a steppingstone to Mars
- SpaceX will participate in NASA's Artemis III mission (planned for mid-2027) to test its landing systems in space before they are sent to the Moon

Making Life Multiplanetary

- Foundational mission is to build the systems & technologies necessary to make life multiplanetary & establish a self-sufficient city on Mars
- SpaceX has indicated that uncrewed Starship cargo flights to Mars could begin as early as 2028, while NASA is working to send astronauts as early as the 2030s

Valuation: $225 December 2027 PT

Valuation Methodology

- $225 December 2027 PT based on ~41x our 2028E GAAP EPS of $5.50, supported by 44x 2028E EBIT & our SOTP
- Mega-cap peers (Mag7 + PLTR) trade at an average of ~38x & median of ~20x 2028E GAAP EPS
- We believe SPCX's category leadership in launch that provides dominant access to a very large $28.5T estimated TAM warrants a premium over core comps
- Attractive financial profile: revenue scaling from $19B in 2025 to $470B in 2030E (91% CAGR) and GAAP Operating Income margin expanding from -14% in 2025 to ~50% in 2030E

Risks to Our Rating & Price Target

Key Risks

- Everything depends on Starship. We view Starship's path to rapid & complete reusability as the critical enabler underpinning SpaceX's many long-term growth drivers. Accordingly, any delays, technical setbacks, or regulatory hurdles that constrain the launch trajectory will impede planned growth across multiple business lines
- Supply constraints, especially in AI. Supply bottlenecks – particularly power availability & silicon/chip supply – could constrain Starlink ramp, orbital satellite production, & overall buildout of compute power
- Extremely strong execution required. Continued execution across both existing initiatives & newer, even more ambitious ones will inevitably bring unforeseen challenges given the scale, complexity, & frontier nature of what SpaceX is pursuing. While SpaceX is currently many years ahead, competition is picking up w/Blue Origin, Amazon (AMZN), & international players
- Heavy capital intensity & N-T FCF burn. The multi-year investment cycle for Starship, Starlink, & compute infrastructure buildout weighs on FCF & we expect the company to rely heavily on the debt market going forward
- Regulatory. Export controls, ITAR, spectrum allocation, & environmental reviews could moderate launch pace or market access
- There's only one Elon. Elon Musk's outsized influence & control (82% voting power) is central to SpaceX's culture, vision, & operational strategy, & we believe his leadership has been a defining driver of the company's success. At the same time, that concentration of control raises governance considerations & exposes the company to leadership-transition risk

Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision. Important disclosures, including price charts and credit opinion history tables, are available for compendium reports and all J.P. Morgan–covered companies, and certain non-covered companies, by visiting <https://www.jpmm.com/research/disclosures>, calling 1-800-477-0406, or e-mailing research.disclosure.inquiries@jpmorgan.com with your request.

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock’s expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts’ coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst’s coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan’s Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
