2Q26 Preview: A strong operating leverage backdrop, with valuation looking fair

As we head into 2Q26 earnings, we expect investors to focus on three key themes: 1) the outlook for NII, given the strong loan growth environment, the forward curve baking in rate hikes by year end offset by the risk from higher deposit funding costs 2) the revenue increase from the step up in both ECM and M&A activity and the sustainability of elevated secondary trading activity ; and 3) the prospects for a multi-year operating leverage cycle, driven by strong fee and NII growth, coupled with banks continuing to show robust expense discipline. Valuation for the group appears fair, after the 17% increase in share prices in 2Q26, which was largely multiple-driven. The average FY+2 P/E multiple now stands at the ~80th percentile and the group is trading at ~65% of the S&P 500 multiple (modestly above the historical level). However, we expect that large cap banks will continue to generate attractive ROTCEs given the strong revenue environment and benign credit outlook. In our view, the best positioned and most topical stocks remain BAC, C and WFC.

We also modestly update our estimates and price targets within.

PM summary

Key debates

- The outlook for NII remains strong on the back of: 1) continued robust loan growth driven by commercial loan demand; and 2) NIM expansion driven by fixed rate asset repricing, with upside to 2027 estimates, as the market forward curve prices in a rate hike by the end of the year and the long end of the curve remains elevated – We expect banks to see 8% NII growth in 2026E driven by 1) 9% loan growth, primarily driven by commercial loans (specifically C&I and NDFI); and 2) continued fixed rate asset repricing as the forward curve remains steep. Industry loan and deposit growth have continued to accelerate recently with 2Q26TD tracking ~6.1%/6.2% higher YoY (Exhibit 2), and 2Q26E loans for banks in our coverage expected to increase 8% YoY (Exhibit 3). We forecast limited deposit repricing in 2Q26E and expect deposit yields to remain largely stable, resulting in cumulative deposit betas continuing to converge towards the historical rate cutting cycle averages (Exhibit 6), decreasing from 52% through 2Q25, to 48% through 2Q26. Notably, as competition to fund loan growth is high, and the market forward curve now bakes in 1 Fed funds hikes by year-end, we forecast deposit yields to increase 7bps between 2Q26E–4Q26E (Exhibit 7). However, we do not expect material changes to the 2026 NII outlook, as the hikes are towards the end of the year, with strong asset growth and asset repricing somewhat offsetting the impact of higher funding cost. That being said, we see potential upside of ~1.0%/1.5% to 2027E NII/EPS upside in a scenario with 25bps parallel upward shift in forward curve (Exhibit 8). Overall, we expect most banks to deliver robust NII in 2026, at the high end of their full year guides, as loan growth, especially C&I continues to outperform expectations.
- Sizing the ECM opportunity, with record 2026E proceeds, and potential equities trading upside. US IPO proceeds are expected to reach all-time highs in 2026, following four consecutive years of muted issuance, based on GS' portfolio strategy estimates (report here). The portfolio strategy team estimates 2026E US IPO gross proceeds of $225bn, ~530%/95% higher than the 2010–25 average/2021 peak (Exhibit 10). There is further upside to this from ~$490bn worth of shares expiring from lockups (Exhibit 11). We estimate a 2026 US IPO fee pool of ~$4.5bn–$9.0bn, up ~90–280% YoY, based on a 2–4% fee rate (Exhibit 12). As such, we see upside potential depending on how underwriting mandates perform for the balance of the year, as Street 2026 ECM forecasts are up only ~25% YoY on average across banks (Exhibit 13). We see a strong correlation between ECM revenue and equities trading in periods of IPO spikes historically with 63% R-squared, indicating a possible multiplier effect in such periods (Exhibit 15). Furthermore, we estimate a ~10.5%/1.5% upside to 2026E equities trading/EPS estimates if 2H26E equities trading were to decline 10% sequentially vs. 1H, vs. a 28% decline estimated currently (Exhibit 16).
- We expect a multi-year operating leverage cycle for large cap banks, driven by strength in both fees and NII, with managements continuing to focus on expense discipline. Large banks have demonstrated robust expense discipline, with most banks committing to deliver over 200bps of operating leverage and core efficiency ratios falling to 58% in 2026E. While we forecast ~7% core expense growth in 2026E, this would be more than offset by ~11% core revenue growth, resulting in ~200bps lower core efficiency ratios YoY for the group in 2026E, and ~120bps YoY improvement in 2027E (Exhibit 20). We expect 4pp of operating leverage in 2Q26E, up 1pp sequentially, with 2H26E operating leverage modestly lower at 2pp (Exhibit 17). We continue to expect positive operating leverage through the cycle, particularly at BAC, C and MS. Banks have continued to highlight their focus on expense management through headcount rationalization, with 1Q26 headcount (ex. JPM) down 5% since 1Q24, while continuing to re-invest in technology, AI and process re-engineering across business segments leading to higher productivity.

Valuation

After an 17% rise in stock prices in 2Q26, largely driven by multiple rerating, we believe the group is fairly valued, with ~12.5x FY+2 P/Es, currently above historical levels (~80th %ile over the past decade), and the group trading at ~65% of the S&P 500 multiple, modestly above the historical relationship to the S&P 500's multiple.

Best positioned and topical stocks

We are constructive on Buy-rated WFC, BAC, and C.

1. BAC, Buy: We remain constructive on BAC's NII trajectory through 2026E/27E. We see BAC's NII growing ~7.0% YoY in 2027E, ~1pp higher than the large bank average for 2027E¹ (Exhibit 22). Further given BAC's asset sensitivity, and less exposure to capital markets revenue risk, we see an increasingly attractive top-line growth story. We are ~1% above consensus 2026E NII, and believe the high end of the guidance as achievable, driven by a combination of: 1) less pressure from short rates, coupled with BAC's asset sensitivity; 2) stronger loan and deposit growth YoY; 3) accretive fixed rate asset repricing; 4) better than expected deposit repricing. We expect further expense discipline, resulting in multiyear operating leverage; 2Q26E/2026E expenses are expected to increase ~7.5%/5% YoY at BAC, resulting in ~415bps/235bps of operating leverage. We see upside risk to BAC's capital return, given increasing excess capital levels from regulatory reform. Finally, we view BAC's current ~1.8x 2027E P/TBV as attractive on our expected ~17% ROTCE (Exhibit 35). Further, we continue to field discussions on:
 - a. The drivers of the strong outlook for 2026 NII, and any potential upside from here.
 - b. Where will BAC track on operating leverage in 2H26 relative to the guided 200bps-300bps of positive operating leverage in 2026.
 - c. Whether the company will see a further step up in fee income growth given the strength in the capital markets and wealth businesses in H2

- 2. C, Buy: Post its investor day, we believe C remains on track to deliver strong earnings and return growth as it continues to demonstrate disciplined execution of its transformation, along with continued share gains across its core businesses. Citi is pulling three key levers to drive earnings growth over the near and medium term that push our core EPS estimates 1%/6%/1% above Visible Alpha Consensus Data for 2026E/27E/28E, with an ~11.4% ROTCE in 2026E (above their 10-11% guidance, and ~20bps ahead of consensus), which should drive upside to the shares for a stock that is currently trading at the lowest P/TBV across large banks. The three levers are: 1) a robust 4% 2026E-28E core revenue CAGR, supported by share gains in capital markets and Wealth, in addition to through-the-cycle strength in the Services business as it leverages its global footprint; 2) meaningful efficiency improvements, driven by both structural productivity gains and reduction in stranded costs and transformation expenses; and 3) continued improvement in capital efficiency through further DTA utilization with improving US profitability, and more disciplined RWA deployment across the core businesses. We believe that C can generate ~5pp of positive core operating leverage in 2026E on 9% core revenue growth and only 4% core expense growth. In addition, we estimated a ~40bps YoY improvement in Citi's SCB during the 2026 Fed stress test, which, while non-binding, evidences that regulators are recognizing C's stronger US profitability and simpler risk profile. As a result, we continue to view management's capital outlook as conservative, embedding a 13.1% CET1 ratio by 2028, meaningfully above GSe/the Street at 12.5%/12.3%, which, in our view, leaves meaningful room for upside to its near and medium term return targets. We expect investor debate on:
- a. How will trading track relative to guidance of up mid-teens YoY given the significant pickup in activity in June and commentary around the sustainability of the run rate heading into H2.
 - b. Will C moderate the mix of buybacks vs balance sheet investments given the higher valuation.
 - c. Will management use revenue strength to deliver higher operating leverage or increase franchise investments in the near term.
- 3. WFC, Buy, on CL: WFC offers an attractive mix of solid top-line growth across both NII and fees, supported by investment in businesses where it remains underindexed, alongside meaningful operating leverage from only modest expense growth over the next two years. We continue to see WFC as well positioned to achieve its 2026 NII target of $50bn, with healthy loan growth more than offsetting higher deposit funding costs in H2, driven by both increased competition and an ongoing mix shift toward commercial deposits. In addition, continued share gains in key strategic growth areas, including capital markets and card, should support robust 5% YoY revenue growth in 2026E/27E. Further, against this constructive revenue backdrop, we forecast modest expense growth of 2%/2%/3% in 2026E/27E/28E, as the company should be able to self-fund a meaningful portion of incremental investments through cost saves, including lower regulatory-related expenses, supporting ~375bps/265bps/180bps of operating leverage and enabling WFC to achieve its medium-term ROTCE target of 17%-18%. Year-to-date, WFC has underperformed bank peers and the broader market by roughly 20pp and 15pp, respectively, primarily due to multiple de-rating to an NTM P/E of just 12.0x, or around the 65th percentile over the past decade. Further, WFC screens undervalued on a relative multiple basis in terms of P/TBV, which, in our view, presents an attractive entry point. Going into the quarter, we see the following key areas of debate:

- Will management change the NII guide for 2026 given the interplay between higher loan growth offset by increased deposit funding costs.
- Will fee revenue continue to track better than peers leading to revenue upgrades.
- Ability to continue managing expense as they ramp investments into growth businesses.

New vs. old estimates

We update estimates modestly to reflect overall management commentary from recent conferences, and capital markets data, with our 2026E/27E/28E EPS estimates revised up by 2%/1%/1% on average. We increase our target P/E multiples by 1.0x to account for higher market multiples, resulting in our 12-month price targets rising by 9% on average. GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our universe of rated stocks) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

For a more detailed description of how we calculate the GS Factor Profile, please contact your GS representative.

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Quantum

Quantum is Goldman Sachs' proprietary database providing access to detailed financial statement histories, forecasts and ratios. It can be used for in-depth analysis of a single company, or to make comparisons between companies in different sectors and markets.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Early-Stage Biotech, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region manages Regional Conviction Lists, which are selected from Buy rated stocks on the respective region's Investment Lists and represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction Lists are managed by the Investment Review Committee or other designated committee in each respective region and do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at <https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html>.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) are removed pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Early-Stage Biotech (ES). An investment rating and a target price are not assigned pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when this company has neither a drug, treatment or medical device that has passed a Phase II clinical trial nor a license to distribute a post-Phase II drug, treatment or medical device. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company.
