China Consumer: Raw Materials Price Chartbook | Asia Pacific

Raw Materials Price Movements (May-26) and Stock Implications

In last month's summary of key raw material price trends and implications for relevant Hong Kong/China consumer stocks, we highlight the uptick in tin and copper prices, while PET and gold prices declined.

Implications for stocks

↑ Yili (600887.SS, OW), Mengniu (2319.HK, OW): We expect raw milk prices to gradually stabilize in 2026, and we see more balanced supply-demand dynamics in 2026. Both Mengniu and Yili target liquid milk to resume growth in 2026, and expect market share gains from smaller players amid potential recovery of raw milk prices. On the other hand, provisions for inventory will likely be largely reduced in 2026, which should benefit net margin.

WH Group (288.HK, OW): Unit returns for packaged meat could remain elevated amid lower hog prices in China, which reduce raw material costs for downstream operations – the company's core business in the market. In the US, upstream operations benefit from sustained high hog prices, while downstream businesses continue to improve product mix and operating efficiency.

Further implications for stocks

= Muyuan (002714.SZ/2714.HK, OW): Despite near-term earnings pressure, a continued decline in hog prices should accelerate industry capacity rationalization and bring forward a price inflection, which we expect around mid-2026. As the industry leader, we believe Muyuan is well positioned to benefit and capture greater upside once hog prices recover.

= Eastroc (605499.SS/9980.HK, OW): Eastroc benefits from lock-in of PET costs for full-year 2026 and sugar cost for ~six months at prices below last year's level. Energy drink and Water Boost growth momentum as well as other key SKUs performance are the keys to watch amid intense market competition.

=/- Tingyi (0322.HK, EW) and Uni-President China (0220.HK, EW): Beverages – PET prices stay elevated alongside rising oil prices. We expect pressure to emerge from late 2Q-3Q onward on Tingyi and UPC's beverage segment margins. Noodles – Higher palm oil and wheat prices could weigh on margins but should be largely manageable, in our view. Competitive dynamics going into summer peak in the beverage segment remain a key determinant of performance in 2026.

= Beer companies (1876.HK, 0291.HK, 0168.HK, 600600.SS, 600132.SS, 000729.SZ): Overall cost pressure remains manageable, in our view, as other raw material costs have stayed relatively steady despite higher aluminum prices. We expect improved ASP trends – driven by a more favorable channel mix, reduced consumer promotions, and a shift toward mid-range products – to offset the impact.

=Laopu (6181.HK, OW): Gold price decline might drag consumer demand for fixed price gold jewelry products, which Laopu is 100% exposed to. This could be partially offset by improving margin given lower raw material costs. Stock sentiment might remain under pressure in near-term as capital market turn skeptical on demand vs. long-term growth potential via brand building.

China Consumer: Raw Material Price Trends

Raw Material Price Trends:

China – hogs/pork: China's hog prices were Rmb10.1/kg as of May; prices were up 0.8% MoM. China's pork retail prices were down 2% MoM in May (vs. down 9% MoM in April), while wholesale pork prices were down 0.2% MoM in May (vs. down 8% MoM in April).

Soybean crush margin: Industry gross margin was down 1.2% MoM in May (vs. down 0.3% MoM in April). This reflects a 0.6% MoM decrease in soybean oil prices, a 2.4% MoM increase soybean meal prices, and a 1.8% MoM increase in US soybean spot prices.

Palm oil: Tianjin spot prices fell 1.3% MoM in May (vs. up 1.3% MoM in April) and are up 1% in YTD2026.

PET: PET prices decreased by 3% MoM in May (vs. up 6% MoM in April) and are up 4% in YTD2026.

Wheat: China wheat prices decreased by 0.9% MoM in May (vs. up 0.4% MoM in April). US wheat prices rose 6.3% MoM in May (vs. down 3% MoM in April).

Metals: Copper prices were up 4% MoM in May (vs. up 2% MoM in Apr) and are up 25% in YTD2026. Aluminum prices were down 1.4% MoM in May (vs. up 2% MoM in Apr) and are up 17% in YTD2026.

Raw milk: Raw milk prices were Rmb3.03/kg at the end of May, +0.2% MoM (vs. down 0.2% MoM in April) and down 1% in 2026. Raw milk prices have stabilized after supply cuts upstream, and we expect raw milk price to gradually increase in 2026.

Milk powder: The average whole milk auction price (WMP) rose 2.2% MoM in May (vs. down 3% MoM in April). YTD2026, the average whole milk auction price is -12% YoY. Whole milk auction price was US$3,706 per MT on Jun 2, 2026.

US hogs/pork: US hog futures spot contract prices rose 0.3% MoM in May (vs. down 0.6% MoM in April). The recent futures curve suggests hog prices could move from an average of ~US$91/cwt in May to ~US$85/cwt in November.

Sugar: Sugar prices rose 0.7% MoM in May (vs. -1.8% MoM in April) and are down 10% in YTD2026.

US hog-raising profit (unhedged): We estimate an industry gain of US$7/head in November (based on futures prices for hogs and corn), vs. a gain of US$25 for each hog in May.
