Another Fuel Price Hike

Key Takeaways

- Diesel and Petrol saw another small price hike of 90paise/litre taking total price hike to US$6.5/bbl (4-4.5% price hike) implying US$82/bbl Brent
- This reduces transport fuel loss to US$9/bbl for retailers. We expect further price hikes in coming weeks
- Past fuel price increases have been implemented by OMCs on a daily/weekly basis under the daily pricing mechanism, limiting the impact on consumption
- Cooking gas losses of US$1bn/month remain very high, although the government has compensated for such losses in the past, as cooking gas is a controlled product
- HPCL benefits the most, followed by BPCL. Reliance and ONGC also benefit; more importantly, fuel price hikes help improve long-term profitability for OMCs

See India Energy: Fuel Prices Hiked and Hindustan Petroleum: Beyond the shock.
