

Japan Shipbuilding: Japan Growth Strategy Council: Reaffirms shipbuilding importance from an economic security perspective

Materials from the fifth meeting of the Japan Growth Strategy Council, held on June 24, were disclosed (link, Japanese only). We summarize the Japanese government's view of current conditions as presented in its draft of a Public-Private Investment Roadmap, government targets and specific policy proposals, and the implications for our Japanese shipbuilding coverage (Namura Shipbuilding, Mitsui E&S, and Tokyo Keiki). All three companies operate businesses that are important from the perspective of Japan's economic security in our view, and we will be watching their business development leveraging future policies. We maintain our Buy rating on all three companies.

- Next-generation vessels: The shipbuilding industry is vital to ensuring a stable supply of commercial vessels for maritime transport of food and other goods, as well as vessels for defense. However, current domestic shipbuilding volume is below demand from Japanese shipowners and operators. Demand for next-generation vessels (e.g., zero-emission ships) is poised to increase in the medium to long term, presenting a potentially game-changing opportunity in the shipbuilding market. Leveraging technologies related to next-generation vessels, the government aims to double shipbuilding volume by 2035 compared to 2024 levels to secure international competitiveness. Potential policies include support for strengthening shipbuilding systems, establishment of educational and research systems for human resource development, leading formulation of international rules at the IMO, and support for overseas shipbuilding in like-minded countries.
- Ship repairs and maintenance: At present, the vast majority of repair and maintenance work in Japan is for domestic coastal vessels, including naval ships and patrol boats (over 90% of the total in 2024 were coastal vessels), and the country is highly dependent on specific overseas countries for ocean-going vessels. To address this, the government plans to establish systems to improve repair and maintenance capacity, and taking into account current conditions of repair docks, it assumes ¥100 bn in public-private investment. Potential policies include leveling out the timing of repairs for government vessels, promoting productivity improvements, establishing educational systems for human resource development, and utilizing repair facilities in like-minded countries.
- LNG carriers: Currently, Japanese shipping companies and consumers (such as electric power and gas companies) have a fleet of c.200 LNG vessels, but the Goldman Sachs does and seeks to do business with companies covered in its research reports. As a result, investors should be aware that the firm may have a conflict of interest that could affect the objectivity of this report. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision. construction of LNG carriers in Japan has ceased since 2019. The acquisition and retention of construction technology for LNG carriers is important from an economic security perspective. The government aims to establish systems to build three to five vessels per year from 2035 onward in order to capture the domestic and over, which is poised to see demand growth. Regarding the scale of public-private investment, the roadmap only states that this will be scrutinized in the future as discussions proceed among relevant parties. Potential policies include encouraging shipowners to place stable orders with domestic shipyards, integrating construction know-how possessed by like-minded countries, and establishing educational and research systems for human resource development.

- Defense industry: The roadmap recommends building a foundation for the development/manufacturing/maintenance of small unmanned aerial vehicles, as well as transferring equipment to allied and like-minded countries and strengthening Japan's production base for naval vessels. The materials mention that the Mogami-class frigate has attracted interest from allied and like-minded countries. While investment in the naval vessel sector, including defense procurement, is slated at c.¥340 bn (FY2026 budget), additional investment is also expected in line with the revision of Japan's three strategic security documents.
- Port cargo handling machinery (cranes): Japanese companies (we assume primarily Mitsui E&S) hold a global installed base share of c.10% for STS cranes and slightly over 10% for yard cranes, with the vast majority of the remainder supplied by a single specific company. In the US, policies are being promoted to revive the domestic manufacturing base for STS cranes, and bolstering competitiveness of port cargo handling machinery is also important for Japan from an economic security perspective. The target is to expand sales to overseas markets (¥20 bn-¥30 bn/year) with an eye on the US and Asia, aiming to capture a share of c.30% in the US market by around 2040. Potential policies include support for capex in port cargo handling machinery, subsidies for the introduction of automated cargo handling machinery, and support for overseas expansion.
- Implications for Namura Shipbuilding/Mitsui E&S/Tokyo Keiki: Namura Shipbuilding could benefit from Japan's efforts to bolster supply systems for next-generation vessels and LNG carriers, and strengthen repair and maintenance capacity. While the overall direction discussed in the materials is in line with the shipbuilding industry revitalization roadmap released at the end of 2025, a more specific direction was provided for repair and maintenance capacity and LNG carriers, and we see this as further broadening the scope of business opportunities for firms. Mitsui E&S, as Japan's largest marine engine manufacturer, should benefit from the expansion of domestic shipbuilding volume (including LNG carriers), and is also likely to see demand shift toward high-value-added products due to the transition to next-generation vessels. The Council's materials also mention support for capital investment in port cargo handling machinery, where the company estimates it holds a 100% domestic order share (volume basis in FY3/26), and this could lead to improvements in capital efficiency (e.g., ROIC) in the future. Tokyo Keiki stands to benefit from growth in domestic shipbuilding volume as a supplier of marine equipment, and as a supplier of defense equipment, it could also benefit from the export of frigates and the production of small unmanned aerial vehicles.

Price Target Risks and Methodology - Namura Shipbuilding Co.

Our 12-month target price of ¥5,600 is based on a target P/B of 2.6X applied to our end-FY3/30E BPS estimate, discounted back to FY3/27E using a cost of equity of 9.8%. Key risks include a sudden increase in production capacity in the shipbuilding industry, higher steel prices, production problems, and a decline in vessel prices.

Price Target Risks and Methodology - Mitsui E&S Co.

Our 12-month target price is ¥7,000. Using a Sum of the Parts (SOTP) model, we apply target P/E multiples of 10X-19X to our net profit estimates for each segment and the respective reference years we use for them, and discount the sum back to FY3/27 using a cost of equity of 9.8%. We apply a P/E of 19X on FY3/31E for marine propulsion systems, 14X on FY3/30E for logistics systems, 14X on FY3/28E for new business development, and 10X on FY3/28E for peripheral services. Key risks include a sharp increase in input costs, deterioration in container transport demand, production problems, and a decline in prices.

Price Target Risks and Methodology - Tokyo Keiki

Our 12-month target price is ¥8,800. The target price is derived applying a target P/E multiple of 23X on our FY3/31E EPS estimate and discounting the value back to FY3/27 using a cost of equity of 10%. Key risks include a deterioration in defense demand, a decline in shipping demand, and a decline in prices caused by competition and other relevant factors.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our universe of rated stocks) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

For a more detailed description of how we calculate the GS Factor Profile, please contact your GS representative.

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Early-Stage Biotech, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region manages Regional Conviction Lists, which are selected from Buy rated stocks on the respective region's Investment Lists and represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction Lists are managed by the Investment Review Committee or other designated committee in each respective region and do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at <https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html>.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) are removed pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Early-Stage Biotech (ES). An investment rating and a target price are not assigned pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when this company has neither a drug, treatment or medical device that has passed a Phase II clinical trial nor a license to distribute a post-Phase II drug, treatment or medical device. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company.

Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchase and sales of options such as spreads. Supporting documentation will be supplied upon request.

Differing Levels of Service provided by Global Investment Research: The level and types of services provided to you by Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research may vary as compared to that provided to internal and other external clients of GS, depending on various factors including your individual preferences as to the frequency and manner of receiving communication, your risk profile and investment focus and perspective (e.g., marketwide, sector specific, long term, short term), the size and scope of your overall client relationship with GS, and legal and regulatory constraints. As an example, certain clients may request to receive notifications when research on specific securities is published, and certain clients may request that specific data underlying analysts' fundamental analysis available on our internal client websites be delivered to them electronically through data feeds or otherwise. No change to an analyst's fundamental research views (e.g., ratings, price targets, or material changes to earnings estimates for equity securities), will be communicated to any client prior to inclusion of such information in a research report broadly disseminated through electronic publication to our internal client websites or through other means, as necessary, to all clients who are entitled to receive such reports.

All research reports are disseminated and available to all clients simultaneously through electronic publication to our internal client websites. Not all research content is redistributed to our clients or available to third-party aggregators, nor is Goldman Sachs responsible for the redistribution of our research by third party aggregators. For research, models or other data related to one or more securities, markets or asset classes (including related services) that may be available to you, please contact your GS representative or go to <https://research.gs.com>.

Disclosure information is also available at <https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html> or from Research Compliance, 200 West Street, New York, NY 10282.
