Momenta

Steering mainstream carmakers into the autonomous era; initiate at Buy

Initiate with Buy; price target at HK$360

We initiate coverage on Momenta, the largest Chinese autonomous driving software provider (measured by OEM coverage), with a Buy rating. We believe its technology and scale make it a natural partner to leading domestic and global carmakers, helping accelerate their drive into the autonomous era. Despite competition, profitability and regulatory risks, its asset-light business model, along with strong revenue growth, provides the company with the operating leverage to generate high margins, thus justifying high P/S, in our view.

A leading solutions provider to top global OEMs

Momenta collaborates with 24 domestic and global carmakers, and leads the market with a diversified customer base, and extensive installation and mass application experience. Carmakers we have spoken with have provided positive feedback on Momenta's technical capabilities and cost effectiveness. Aided by rapid technology upgrades and cost reduction, L2+ ADAS has accelerated its penetration across the model price range and is increasingly considered an essential feature in competitive models. We believe Momenta looks best positioned to benefit from the L2+ ADAS trend, and see high visibility for growth in its annual volume installations from 51k units in 2025 to 2.5m units in 2028E, representing an increase in market share from less than 2% to 10% of annual car sales in China over the same period. Supported by expanding OEM coverage, vehicle installations, and robotaxi and robovan operations, we forecast Momenta to achieve a 2025-30E revenue CAGR of c50% and break even in 2028.

Competition, margin and regulatory risks

Momenta has a number of competitors in China's L2+ market, including Huawei, which lends its branding to partner OEMs, Horizon, which provides OEMs with hardware alongside its software solutions, as well as Zhuoyu DJI and DeepRoute. Competition aside, we also see margin risks as OEMs may exert pricing pressure to software suppliers amid fierce downstream competition. Memory price inflation may also curb near-term high-level NOA adoption. Regulations could also pose a risk to its overseas expansion amid geopolitical and data security concerns, and the heavily regulated robotaxi business faces similar risks, in our view.

Valuation:

The stock is trading at 10x FY27E P/S vs 5x for Horizon and 12x for Tesla based on UBS estimates. While at a US$8-9bn market cap similar to Horizon, Mobileye and Wayve, we see Momenta's fast revenue growth and high GPM leverage as highlights. Our price target of HK$360.00 is based on an 8x FY28E P/S, implying 25% upside.

UBS Research THESIS MAP a guide to our thinking and what's where in this reportPIVOTAL QUESTIONS*Q: Can Momenta achieve a 2025-30E revenue CAGR of c50%?

Probably. Amid the industry trend of intelligence upgrades, we expect Momenta to expand both OEM coverage and projects under development, and increase the number of vehicles with Momenta's installed solution each year, leveraging its leading technology and cost effectiveness of urban NOA solutions. Besides revenue from mass produced vehicles, we expect robotaxi and robovan business to contribute to the topline gradually, serving as key medium-term revenue drivers for the firm.

Q: Can Momenta generate equal shares of revenue from domestic and overseas markets?

Uncertain. While Momenta's ADAS solution has been adopted in overseas models of Chinese carmakers, the overseas expansion of software solutions is still largely subject to regulatory risks, especially driven by geopolitical and data security concerns. If the global ecosystem for autonomous driving becomes divided between China and the West, Momenta's total addressable market could be constrained over the long term.

UBSVIEW

We initiate coverage on Momenta, the largest Chinese autonomous driving software provider, with a Buy rating. We believe its technology and scale make it a natural partner to leading domestic and global carmakers, helping accelerate their drive into the autonomous era. Despite competition, profitability and regulatory risks, its asset-light business model, along with strong revenue growth, provides the company with the operating leverage to generate high margins, thus justifying high P/S, in our view.

EVIDENCE

1) Momenta secured over 170 nominations cumulatively, of which over 68 have reached SOP. The company has established partnerships with 24 global OEMs, serving 9 out of the top 10 global carmakers with cumulative installation volume exceeding 680k units. 2) Momenta's ADAS solution has been adopted by leading Chinese OEMs for their models in overseas markets such as Germany, the United Kingdom, Thailand and the UAE, and the company is collaborating with top global OEMs to pilot L3 initiatives across Europe, Southeast Asia, and other emerging markets. 3) Momenta obtained commercial operating approvals for robotaxis in Suzhou and Shanghai, pilot operation permits and testing approvals in Wuxi, as well as testing approvals in Abu Dhabi.

COMPANY DESCRIPTION

Momenta is a leading independent driving automation solutions providers in China, offering both L2-Urban NOA solution in mass produced vehicles and solutions for robotaxi services. Momenta ranked No.1 among independent Urban NOA solutions providers in China across three key metrics: (i) trailing 12 months sales volume of vehicles (ii) number of nominations secured and (iii) number of mass-produced vehicle models adopting its Urban NOA solutions as of February 28, 2026, per CIC.

OUR THESIS IN PICTURES

OEM coverage of key NOA solution providers

Momenta is the largest independent autonomous driving solutions provider in China, offering both L2 and L4 solutions. The company leads in terms of key commercial milestones, including nominations and SOPs for urban NOA.

Penetration rate of ADAS with L2++ and above (%)

Advanced ADAS has increasingly become a standard requirement for consumers. Across different price ranges, urban ADAS features have recorded increasing penetration.

Momenta's revenue breakdown (Rmb m)

We forecast Momenta to achieve 2025-30E revenue CAGR of c50%, supported by 1) expanding OEM coverage and more vehicle installations each year; 2) robotaxi and robovan operations serving as a key medium-term drivers.

Sources for exhibits above: Company data, UBS Research, NE ADAS database. Note: SOPs and nominations are as of February 28, 2026. L2++ ADAS and above include solutions with both highway and urban NOA capabilities

Annual installation assumptions for licensing revenue (units)

We believe Momenta looks best positioned to benefit from the uptrend in L2+ ADAS penetration, and forecast its annual installation volume to reach 2.5m units in 2028E from 51k units in 2025, equivalent to 10% of annual car sales in China from less than 2% in 2025.

Net profit and GPM (Rmb b, %)

We believe Momenta offers a high quality option to investors when compared with close peers at US$8-9bn. Momenta has higher margin and is less loss-making than Horizon.

Revenue forecast of Momenta and Mobileye

Compared with Mobileye, we believe Momenta has stronger revenue growth momentum. Momenta is loss-making for now, but its rapid revenue growth and high contributing margins justify a higher valuation, in our view.

Opportunities for Momena

Momena is the largest independent autonomous driving solutions provider in China, offering both L2-Urban NOA solution in mass produced vehicles and solutions for robotaxi services. Amid intense competition, advanced driver-assistance systems (ADAS) have increasingly become a must-have function amid rapid industry intelligence upgrades. UBS estimates the total addressable market (TAM) for high-level ADAS alone could reach approximately US$142bn by 2030, driven by rising penetration rates, increasing software content per vehicle, and the industry's transition toward end-to-end intelligent driving architectures.

Looking at the China market, despite tepid overall domestic auto demand, L2++ ADAS-equipped models have continued to deliver solid year-on-year growth, supported by accelerating technology adoption and improving cost structures. Across different price ranges, urban ADAS features have recorded increasing penetration. At the same time, foreign OEMs have generally lagged leading domestic Chinese brands in L2 ADAS adoption and feature rollout. Momena can be a natural partner to both domestic and JV OEMs for accelerating their intelligence upgrades leveraging leading technology and cost effectiveness.

Momenta leads in key commercial milestones among global independent urban NOA solution providers, including securing over 170 cumulative nominations, of which over 68 have reached SOP. The company has established partnerships with 24 global OEMs, including Mercedes-Benz, BMW Group China, Audi, Toyota, Honda and Dongfeng Nissan, serving 9 out of top 10 global carmakers with cumulative installation volumes exceeding 680,000 units. By the number of models incorporating its Urban NOA solutions, the company recorded 64.5% market share for the trailing 12 months ended 28 February 2026.

As Chinese carmakers accelerate their exports and deployment in overseas markets, Momenta has also expanded its footprint into international markets. For example, several overseas models of IM Motors have already been launched in the UK, Australia and New Zealand, powered by Momenta solutions. We believe Momenta has established a reasonably diversified customer base and may offer synergies for incumbent carmakers to catch up in terms autonomous driving capabilities with cost efficiency and data synergy.

We believe Momenta looks best positioned to benefit from the uptrend in L2+ ADAS penetration, and see high visibility on annual installation volumes potentially reaching 2.5m units in 2028E from 51k units in 2025, equivalent to 10% of annual car sales in China from less than 2% in 2025. Out of 510k units of vehicles delivered with Momenta's solution in 2025, we estimate BYD contributed c250k units, SAIC Group contributed over 100k units, and Chery, GAC, Dongfeng Nissan and GAC Toyota each contributed 20-50k units.

We forecast the annual installation volume to double in 2026 to 1.1m units, based on Momenta's nomination and pipelines. We expect BYD and SAIC to contribute 400k and 300k units this year, while other customers like Chery, GWM, DF Nissan and GAC ramp up to 50-100k units.

Going forward, management expects annual vehicles delivery with Momenta solution to reach 2.4/5.8m units in 2027/28F due to expanding nominations from leading domestic & global brands as well as accelerating L2++ penetration rate for each new model launched. While we are encouraged that management has higher ambitions, we make relatively more prudent forecasts of 1.8-2.5m units installed in 2027-28E.

Momenta is also actively pursuing a subscription model for L3 vehicles, collaborating with leading OEMs on the development of advanced L3 autonomous driving technologies. Pre-SOP development and OEM acceptance are currently targeted for 2026, with mass production planned for early 2027, subject to regulatory developments and the implementation schedules of the relevant OEM programs. While L3 visibility remains low in our view, management however, has shown high confidence in this commercialization opportunity.

In the medium term, Momenta is expanding its L4 robotaxi operation business with plans to expand into robovans and robotrucks as technology and commercialisation mature. Momenta obtained commercial operating approvals for robotaxis in Suzhou and Shanghai, pilot operation permits and testing approvals in Wuxi, as well as testing approvals in Abu Dhabi. The company adopts a map-free architecture leveraging real-world driving data from mass-produced vehicles and reinforcement learning R6 model, with plans to launch the world's first mass-produced robotaxi fleet in Shanghai, in partnership with SAIC. While both the robotaxi and robovan businesses do not yet contribute to the company's revenue or profit, we believe this represents a promising initiative for technological upgrade and commercializing Momenta's autonomous driving know-how on a longer-term horizon.

Given relatively fixed development costs and R&D cost structure and software synergies in serving different carmakers, the company recorded a high GPM of 72% in 2025. Going forward, we expect Momenta to expand both OEM coverage and projects under development, and increase the number of vehicles with Momenta's installed solutions each year, leveraging its leading technology and cost effectiveness of urban NOA solutions. As the number of models incorporating Momenta's urban NOA solutions grows, we forecast licensing revenue to take up a higher share of revenue, leading to further margin accretion.

Risks to Momenta

Momenta operates in an increasingly crowded urban NOA market, facing intense competition from independent ADAS/autonomous driving solution providers. In China, rivals such as Huawei, DeepRoute.ai, QCraft, and Horizon Robotics are all pursuing scalable urban NOA deployments through partnerships with multiple automakers, while overseas competitors including Mobileye and Wayve are advancing software-centric autonomous driving platforms with global ambitions.

Beyond third-party technology vendors, Momenta also faces the risk of competition from its own OEM customers, many of which are investing heavily in in-house autonomous driving stacks, software platforms, and AI capabilities to gain greater control over differentiation, data, and costs. As OEMs increasingly internalise key ADAS and autonomous driving technologies, we believe Momenta will need to continue to demonstrate superior performance, faster iteration, and cost competitiveness to defend its position as a leading independent supplier.

In addition, Momenta's customer and shareholder base includes more global OEMs and foreign-affiliated automakers than many domestic peers, which could leave it more exposed to the ongoing structural decline of JV brands in China. As Chinese brands continue to gain share through stronger EV offerings and faster technology adoption, sustained volume pressure at global OEMs could weigh on vehicle programs that incorporate Momenta's solutions. We believe the company has actively pursued partnership and deepened collaboration with leading domestic brands, from which we have had positive feedback on its technical capabilities and cost effectiveness.

Another risk may arise from memory chip cost inflation, as higher level ADAS requires more memory chip content than basic ones. Since last year, memory chip prices have more than tripled as of Q226, and UBS expects prices to continue to trend up towards end-2027. During our 2026 EV and AD tour, Horizon's management estimated that new car ADAS penetration increased from 70% in Q425 to 75% in Q126, but within models with ADAS capabilities, the adoption of high level NOA actually declined from 50% in Q425 to c40% in Q126, at least partially driven by memory chip cost pressure, per management.

Figure 15: Memory price rose rapidly since last year, and we expect cost inflation to continue

In addition, Momena is highly sensitive to evolving regulatory requirements in both China and international markets. In China, regulators are increasing their scrutiny of intelligent driving technologies, with stricter expectations around functional safety, accident accountability and data security, potentially increasing compliance costs and limiting commercialisation flexibility.

Overseas, Momena faces additional challenges related to data sovereignty, local data storage and processing requirements, software certification, and cybersecurity regulations. Geopolitical tensions and tightening restrictions on Chinese technology in certain jurisdictions could further constrain market access, delay deployments, or require significant localization efforts, creating uncertainty for the company's global expansion strategy.

WHAT'S PRICED IN?

A high quality autonomous driving play

The company is trading at 10x FY27E P/S, compared to 5x for Horizon and 10x for Tesla on UBS estimates. While at a US$8-9bn market cap similar to Horizon, Mobileye, Wayve, we see Momenta's fast revenue growth and high GPM leverage as highlights.

Compared with close peers such as Horizon, Mobileye, and Wayve (all trading at US$8-9bn, almost the same as Momenta), we believe Momenta offers a high quality option to investors. Momenta and Horizon are in a similar ADAS industry with similar GPM, but as a software provider Momenta has smaller revenue, much lighter cost structure than hardware supplier Horizon. This should allow for higher potential operating leverage, in our view.

Compared with Mobileye, admittedly Mobileye is more mature and already profitable, but Momenta has much faster revenue growth. Over 2025-28E, UBS forecasts 10% revenue CAGR for Mobileye vs 64% for Momenta. Momenta, for now, is loss-making, but it shows strong revenue growth momentum with high contributing margins, which should support a higher valuation.

Compared with Wayve, which operates a highly similar business in the UK, we believe Momenta has an edge with its longer track record, a larger installation basis, and stronger customer relationships. Other robotaxi peers like Pony and WeRide have traded at historical valuation ranges of US$2-9bn each, albeit Pony and WeRide have more of a track record and fleet in the robotaxi segment for now, while Momenta believes its L2+ data and expertise will help its robotaxi development.

Valuing Momenta

Given its fast revenue growth and high contributing margin, we find it hard to value Momenta with conventional near-term P/E, P/B, P/S, EV/EBITDA multiples. Despite the risks relating to competition, margins and regulations, its light-asset business model generates high contributing margins and operating leverage, on top of high revenue growth, thus justifying a high P/S in the medium term, in our view. We value Momenta at 8x 2028E P/S, benchmarking it against the simple average 2027E P/S of its close peers Pony, WeRide, Tesla, Mobileye and Horizon, and set its price target accordingly at HK $360.00, implying 25% upside from the current share price.

UPSIDE/DOWNSIDE SPECTRUM

Risk to the current share price is skewed to the upside (1.8: 1)

Momena is trading at HK$288.00 as of 16 July 2026.

UPSIDE (HK$450.00): Our upside case assumes Momena to deliver 1.5-4.0m units of vehicles equipped with its ADAS solutions, deriving Rmb5.0-7.5bn revenue from mass-produced vehicles in 2026-28E. In the scalable robos segment, we assume Momena operates 12k robotaxis by 2028E, and achieves Rmb2.4bn revenue from operating robotaxis and robovans in 2028E. Our 2026-28E total revenue assumptions are Rmb5.0-13bn, and we expect Momena to break even in 2028E with net profit of Rmb1.5bn. Under our upside scenario, we value Momena at HK$450.00 based on 9x 2028E P/S.

BASE (HK$360.00): Our base case assumes Momena delivers 1.1-2.5m units of vehicles equipped with its ADAS solutions, deriving Rmb4.0-6.6bn of revenue from mass-produced vehicles in 2026-28E. In the scalable robos segment, we expect Momena to operate 10k robotaxis by 2028E, and achieve Rmb4.1bn revenue from operating robotaxis and robovans in 2028E. Our forecast for 2026-28E total revenue is Rmb4.0-10.8bn, and we expect Momena to break even in 2028E with net profit of Rmb1.0bn. Based on our base case, we set our price target for Momena at HK$360.00, based on 8x 2028E P/S, benchmarking it against its autonomous driving peers, implying 25% upside.

DOWNSIDE (HK$200.00): Our downside case assumes Momena struggles to commercialise its L2+ solutions and slows its L4 scalable robos applications. We assume Momena delivers 0.8-1.5m units of vehicles equipped with its ADAS solutions, deriving Rmb2.0-7.0bn revenue from mass-produced vehicles in 2026-28E. In the scalable robos segment, we expect Momena to operate 5k robotaxis by 2028E, and achieve Rmb1.0bn revenue from operating robotaxis and robovans in 2028E. Our 2026-28E total revenue assumptions are Rmb2.0-8.0bn, and we expect Momena to break even in 2028E with net profit of Rmb0.3bn. Under our downside scenario, we value Momena at HK$200.00 based on 7x 2028E P/S.

COMPANY DESCRIPTION

Momena is a leading independent driving automation solution provider in China, offering the L2-Urban NOA solution in mass-produced vehicles and solutions for robotaxi services. As per CIC, as of 28 Feb 2026, Momena ranked first among independent Urban NOA solution providers in China across three key metrics: 1) trailing-12-month sales volume of vehicles; 2) number of nominations secured; and 3) number of mass-produced vehicle models adopting its Urban NOA solutions.

Industry Outlook

UBS estimates the total addressable market (TAM) for high-level ADAS alone could reach approximately US$142bn by 2030, driven by rising penetration rates, increasing software content per vehicle, and the industry's transition toward end-to-end intelligent driving architectures. We expect the TAM for robotaxis to reach US$183bn in China and US$394bn in global markets (ex-US) by late 2030s. Our calculations suggest gross IRR for a typical robotaxi in China could reach 77% in 2030, assuming an average 250km daily trip and a Rmb3.0/km charge.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES:UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Consultation (IRC). As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.
