

PRADA Group

A really healthy delivery

Our Take: Prada reported robust H1 26 results, with a 4% beat on Q2 sales and 6% beat on H1 EBIT BBG consensus. At sales level, Q2 revenue grew 18% ex-FX and +7% organic, a solid improvement vs +3% in Q1 and better than our expectations at +3%. The Prada brand was the engine of this acceleration, with retail sales bouncing back to +6% (JPMe: +2.5%), a fast improvement vs Q1 at flat (and not so different vs the highly celebrated improvement at Gucci, arguably though on a much tougher base and to positive territory), thanks to ongoing work on product newness and focus on full price sales. Miu Miu was in line, +3% in the quarter (+6% adjusting for the drag from the Middle East), a well managed normalisation in our view considering the still elevated base of comparison (+40% in Q2 25). Profitability was also better than feared, with margins down less than anticipated (EBIT margin -500bps to 17.2%, of which -350bps from the dilution of Versace, vs our estimate at -590bps), and confirming that, organically, gross margin improved slightly, including a positive contribution from full price sales. This in our view is a very healthy delivery from the Group, which continues to work hard on product newness, merchandising, activation/clienteling and retail excellence at all brands in the portfolio, delivering some of the most resilient performance in the leather goods category. At 13x P/E 27e this is clearly underappreciated by the market: we think this print should be well received and we remain Overweight.

- Noteworthy Areas: 1) Group Q2 sales were better, +16% reported to €1.6bn, +18% ex-FX (JPMe: +13%) and +7% organic (JPMe: +3%); 2) Prada brand drove the acceleration, at +6% ex-FX in retail (JPMe: +3%), a nice improvement vs flat last quarter and ahead of the pace of the sequential improvement the sector saw in Q2 (at +3-4% on average). Pleasingly, management noted that growth was slightly positive in volume terms, with positive mix driving most of the improvement. This is testament in our view to the strong work the brand is doing on product and clienteling to nurture relationships with consumers across the pricing pyramid while stretching the pyramid higher (a rare phenomenon in leather goods these days with most brands busy recalibrating their pricing architectures). On clusters performance, the Group flagged “Chinese very positive in Q2, up double digit further improving vs Q1 (both locals and tourists), Europeans flattish/slightly improving, North Americans very positive demand and further accelerating, Japanese flattish”; 3) Miu Miu grew by 3%, in line with expectations, but actually by 6% excluding the Middle East drag. Importantly, the brand continued to grow on a base that was up 40% a year ago and +175% vs 2 years ago. This included a flat/-1% LFL (testament that the work on product and branding continue to support the desirability of the brand) and LSD% space contribution; 4) Regionally trends were consistent with the rest of the luxury reporting: Americas was very strong and accelerating at +19% organic, Apac also improved to +8% organic, including “very positive” performance in Korea, Japan (+8% organic) was supported by locals and tourists, while Europe was negatively impacted by tourist spend albeit recovering; 5) Profitability was healthy on an organic basis: H1 EBIT margin declined by 500bps on a reported basis, although including 350bps dilution from Versace consolidation and unfavourable phasing of marketing

Summary Investment Thesis and Valuation

Investment Thesis

Prada is a key luxury goods player in Fashion & Leather Goods. Its portfolio of brands includes Prada, Miu Miu, Versace, Church's, Car Shoe and Marchesi 1824. Following heavy investments across the group between 2016 and 2019, Prada and Miu Miu have been experiencing very solid momentum since 2021, benefitting from sustained product newness at the former and high desirability at the latter, despite a multi-year very tough comp. Such solid trends is driving the ongoing recovery of sales densities with profitability following suit. We think there is further potential for both brands to continue to extend their presence and lift their financial KPIs, increasingly catching up with the other mega-brands in the luxury arena. While the Versace acquisition adds execution risk in the short term and will require the Group to invest in restoring brand desirability and profitability, we think Prada Group still offers some of the most attractive fundamentals and valuation in the luxury sector, with earnings growth in the core Group continuing to run in double-digits. We rate the stock Overweight.

spend which should reverse in H2 (as marketing as % of sales should remain broadly stable yoy for the FY). Gross margin was better than expected, -180bps yoy to 78.3%, albeit slightly up organic thanks to the positive contribution from a higher share of sales at full price. Overall H1 adj. EBIT was €530m, 9% better than our forecasts (6% higher than BBG consensus).

- Outlook & Guidance: 1) On current trading, management noted: “we have seen last week of June and a couple of weeks of July, which were soft, and then we went back to to a good rhythm”; 2) the dilution from Versace in H2 is expected to be similar to H1 (i.e. 350bps); 3) marketing as % of sales for FY26 should be stable, “or maybe slightly above” vs FY25; 4) On Miu Miu sustainable growth going forward: “Miu Miu has an opportunity to grow between 5-10% long term. I've got no doubts about this”, Mr Guerra noted.
- Changes to estimates: We have raised our forecasts by 2% largely banking in the H1 beat. We currently model Q3 26 sales +7% organic, including Prada brand retail sales +6% ex-FX and Miu Miu retail +8% ex-FX. Our estimates are currently 2% ahead of FY26 net income consensus but 6-7% ahead for the outer years.
- Valuation: Prada trades on 13x P/E on 2027 JPMe, at c.40% discount vs. the sector average of 20x (ex-Brunello Cucinelli, Ferragamo, Ferrari, Ferretti, Hermes and Swatch).

Investment Thesis, Valuation and Risks

PRADA Group (Overweight; Price Target: HK$62.50)

Investment Thesis

Prada is a key luxury goods player in Fashion & Leather Goods. Its portfolio of brands includes Prada, Miu Miu, Versace, Church's, Car Shoe and Marchesi 1824. Following heavy investments across the group between 2016 and 2019, Prada and Miu Miu have been experiencing very solid momentum since 2021, benefitting from sustained product newness at the former and high desirability at the latter, despite a multi-year very tough comp. Such solid trends is driving the ongoing recovery of sales densities with profitability following suit. We think there is further potential for both brands to continue to extend their presence and lift their financial KPIs, increasingly catching up with the other mega-brands in the luxury arena. While the Versace acquisition adds execution risk in the short term and will require the Group to invest in restoring brand desirability and profitability, we think Prada Group still offers some of the most attractive fundamentals and valuation in the luxury sector, with earnings growth in the core Group continuing to run in double-digits. We rate the stock Overweight.

Valuation

Our Dec-27 DCF target price is based on FY26-F30 explicit forecasts, medium-term growth of 5.5%, terminal growth of 3.5%, and a WACC of 9.5%.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

We believe that the key risks to our OW rating and target price include the following:

- Deterioration in the macro-economic environment
- Sustained heavy investments to support top-line momentum
- Pressure on the core leather goods offer
- Unforeseen changes in fashion trends that the Group does not manage to capture
- Toughening competitive landscape (notably a faster-than-expected comeback from Gucci)
- Forex
- Disruption to tourism
- Execution risk at Versace

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period. J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe). NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
