Koreans are the biggest spenders in the world on personal luxury goods

Average spend per capita (in $) in 2025 – Morgan Stanley estimates

Breakdown of personal luxury goods by channel in 2025 (MS estimates)

- South Korea is unique because the department store - not the luxury street - has become the centre of the luxury ecosystem.
- Department stores are in effect malls as stores are operated under a concession model.
- Department stores flagship locations combine dozens of directly operated boutiques with concierge services, VIP lounges, private dining, cultural programming, valet parking and sophisticated clienteling systems.
- Luxury brands operate very few stand-alone high-street stores (generally only one or two flagships for the entire country).
- The share of duty-free (downtown and airport stores) has dramatically shrunk over the past decade.

Note: Duty-free sales include luxury spending in both downtown and airports stores. The big three (Lotte, Shinsegae, and Hyundai) account for more than 90% of dept store sales
