Soft 1H26 earnings priced in: still underwriting the 2027 recovery

Equities
REMD

China

- ◆ Yuexiu's profit warning proved a non-event; expectations were already reset
- ◆ K-shaped recovery and market consolidation underpin our expectation of a broad earnings recovery from 2027
- ◆ Prefer Buy-rated CRL and C&D, both offering more resilient earnings profile (p.2)

1H26 earnings preview. On 17 July, Yuexiu Property announced a profit alert, expecting 1H26 core net profit to decline by c90–95% y-o-y, citing lower revenue recognition from contracted sales, weaker JV contributions, and continued margin pressure – factors we also expect to see across other developers. Its share price was up 1.6% on 20 July (vs HSI: +2.4%), reflecting these factors have been priced in. We expect developers to record more impairment provisions and lower margins for sold inventories in 1H26 or even the full year, but the sector's earnings recovery theme remains intact (Catch me if you can: the market's already in 2027, 8 April 2026), given narrowing home price decline and reduced destocking pressure.

Capitalising on the K-shaped recovery. Primary sales stayed soft through early summer, partly due to an unusually rainy season across many eastern cities. That said, the K-shaped recovery remains largely undisturbed. On the mass-market side, secondary transactions MTD are up ~7% y-o-y in 10 cities (Figure 3), pointing to improving resale liquidity. Together with better affordability, this could help attract household savings back into housing without a meaningful leverage-up, against tighter cross-border capital controls and limited higher-yielding onshore alternatives. Into 2H, an easier base leaves room for upside surprises. At the premium end, demand remains resilient, with record luxury transactions in Hangzhou in 1H26 and strong recent launches (Figure 4) underscoring appetite for luxury products.

Market share gains remain concentrated among leaders. In 1H26, Top 10 developers' market share rose ~1ppt y-o-y from 2025, while Top 50's was broadly flat (Figure 5), signalling ongoing consolidation and widening divergence. We believe developers with stronger product capabilities and premium land banks are best positioned to monetise upgrader demand. CRL, COLI and Jinmao continue to gain share alongside meaningful ASP uplift, reflecting a higher mix of premium launches. For retail landlords, despite soft retail sales, the total share of our covered names in national retail sales almost doubled from 2021 to 2025 (Figure 6). Though valuation upside may still be capped by subdued sentiment, earnings visibility supports our positive stance.

Preferred picks. We continue to see greater upside surprise potential for residential developers, favouring CRL and C&D (both Buy-rated) for their leading position in high-end projects and stronger earnings visibility. We expect both companies to have more resilient 1H26 results although they are not immune from the sector headwinds.

1H26 results preview

Yuexiu Property's profit alert on 17 July is part of a broader trend: several developers have guided to sharp net profit declines or potential net losses, including China Merchants Shekou (001979 CH, Not Rated) and Huafa Properties (600325 CH, Not Rated). In our view, the market has largely priced in the potentially weak 1H26 and FY26 results, with attention shifting to a more meaningful earnings recovery from 2027 onwards as the drag from falling home prices eases. We expect most developers to face similar pressures:

- ◆ Development Property (DP) revenue contraction: With contracted sales declining through 2023-25, revenue recognition is likely to fall materially over 2026-28.
- ◆ Margin compression: Continued home price declines and inventory destocking should drive further impairment provisions and lower margins on completed homes sales, weighing on gross margins.
- ◆ Lower JV contribution: Profit shares from jointly developed projects are also likely to weaken amid ongoing sector headwinds.

Two standouts – CRL and C&D

On stock level, select developers will lead in this earnings recovery cycle - we expect CRL and C&D to have more resilient results.

- ◆ CRL (Buy): DP challenges partially offset by IP strength. 1H26 gross rental income rose 13% y-o-y (based on monthly announcements), helping to cushion softer DP revenue. High shopping mall margins (FY25: 77%) should further mitigate DP margin pressure. In addition, a >RMB2bn revaluation gain (vs RMB10bn 1H25 core profit) related to the Chengdu Mixc mall spin-off which we expect to be recognised in 1H26 could alleviate earnings pressure.
- ◆ C&D (Buy): Supported by a younger landbank. We expect earnings to be stable or decline modestly in 1H26, underpinned by lower impairment risk from a relatively young landbank and less urgency to destock completed homes.

On the other hand, we expect COLI (Buy) and China Jinmao (Hold) to face tougher comparisons given their stronger 1H25 earnings versus 2H25. For Yuexiu Property (Buy), we reckon there are downside risks to our current 2026 forecasts given ongoing margin pressure. We will reassess potential impairment risk after the 1H26 results, as this remains difficult to quantify at this stage. That said, given the low earnings base in 2025 (RMB260m), we still see scope for a meaningful uplift in 2026 earnings.

Valuation and risks

Valuation		Risks
CR Land 1109 HK Buy	Current price: HKD34.48 Target price: HKD43.80 Upside: 27.0%	Methodology: The NAV is calculated by adding up the gross asset values (GAVs) of development projects (DPs) and investment projects (IPs), then subtracting net debt, based on company reports. Our assignment of a target discount is on a relative basis; companies that share similar operational/financial strengths and execution track records should be assigned the same target discount. Assumptions: A NAV discount of 21%, set at 1 SD above the historical mean, is applied to our NAV per share estimate of HKD55.50 (all unchanged). We use a discount that is 1 SD above the historical mean in the valuation to reflect CR Land's increase in sales momentum, strong recurrent income, and solid execution track record. Our unchanged target price of HKD43.80 implies c27% upside to current levels; we therefore maintain our Buy rating on the stock, which is supported by its promising margin recovery trajectory and exposure to high-profile cities, positioning the company to benefit early in a market recovery. Michelle Kwok* michellekwok@hsbc.com.hk +852 2996 6918
C&D International 1908 HK Buy	Current price: HKD14.45 Target price: HKD19.90 Upside: 37.7%	Methodology: The NAV is calculated by adding up the gross asset values (GAVs) of development projects (DPs) and investment projects (IPs), then subtracting net debt, based on company reports. Our assignment of a target discount is on a relative basis; companies that share similar operational/financial strengths and execution track records should be assigned the same target discount. Assumptions: A NAV discount of 53%, set at 0.25 SD above the historical mean, is applied to our NAV per share estimate of HKD42.40 (all unchanged). We use a discount that is 0.25 SD above the historical mean to reflect the encouraging margin recovery trend and unique competitive edge supported by a young landbank. Our unchanged target price of HKD19.90 implies c38% upside to current levels; accordingly, we maintain our Buy rating on the stock. Stephen Wang*, CFA stephen.wang@hsbc.com.hk +852 2284 1675
Yuexiu 123 HK Buy	Current price: HKD3.72 Target price: HKD5.10 Upside: 37.1%	Methodology: The NAV is calculated by adding up the gross asset values (GAVs) of development projects (DPs) and investment projects (IPs), then subtracting net debt, based on company reports. Our assignment of a target discount is on a relative basis; companies that share similar operational/financial strengths and execution track records should be assigned the same target discount. Assumptions: An NAV discount of 65%, set at 0.75 SD below the historical mean, is applied to our NAV per share estimate of HKD14.70 (all unchanged). We use 0.75 SD below the historical mean NAV due to its shrinking sales, slow land purchase, and persistent concerns on inventory impairment. Our unchanged target price of HKD5.10 implies c37% upside. We maintain a Buy rating as we expect it to benefit from the recovery led by tier-1 cities. Equities: Stock ratings and basis for financial analysis

HSBC and its affiliates, including the issuer of this report ("HSBC") believes an investor's decision to buy or sell a stock should depend on individual circumstances such as the investor's existing holdings, risk tolerance and other considerations and that investors utilise various disciplines and investment horizons when making investment decisions. Ratings should not be used or relied on in isolation as investment advice. Different securities firms use a variety of ratings terms as well as different rating systems to describe their recommendations and therefore investors should carefully read the definitions of the ratings used in each research report. Further, investors should carefully read the entire research report and not infer its contents from the rating because research reports contain more complete information concerning the analysts' views and the basis for the rating.

From 23rd March 2015 HSBC has assigned ratings on the following basis:

The target price is based on the analyst's assessment of the stock's actual current value, although we expect it to take six to 12 months for the market price to reflect this. When the target price is more than 20% above the current share price, the stock will be classified as a Buy; when it is between 5% and 20% above the current share price, the stock may be classified as a Buy or a Hold; when it is between 5% below and 5% above the current share price, the stock will be classified as a Hold; when it is between 5% and 20% below the current share price, the stock may be classified as a Hold or a Reduce; and when it is more than 20% below the current share price, the stock will be classified as a Reduce.

Our ratings are re-calibrated against these bands at the time of any 'material change' (initiation or resumption of coverage, change in target price or estimates).

Upside/Downside is the percentage difference between the target price and the share price.

Prior to this date, HSBC's rating structure was applied on the following basis:

For each stock we set a required rate of return calculated from the cost of equity for that stock's domestic or, as appropriate, regional market established by our strategy team. The target price for a stock represented the value the analyst expected the stock to reach over our performance horizon. The performance horizon was 12 months. For a stock to be classified as Overweight, the potential return, which equals the percentage difference between the current share price and the target price, including the forecast dividend yield when indicated, had to exceed the required return by at least 5 percentage points over the succeeding 12 months (or 10 percentage points for a stock classified as Volatile*). For a stock to be classified as Underweight, the stock was expected to underperform its required return by at least 5 percentage points over the succeeding 12 months (or 10 percentage points for a stock classified as Volatile*). Stocks between these bands were classified as Neutral.

*A stock was classified as volatile if its historical volatility had exceeded 40%, if the stock had been listed for less than 12 months (unless it was in an industry or sector where volatility is low) or if the analyst expected significant volatility. However, stocks which we did not consider volatile may in fact also have behaved in such a way. Historical volatility was defined as the past month's average of the daily 365-day moving average volatilities. In order to avoid misleadingly frequent changes in rating, however, volatility had to move 2.5 percentage points past the 40% benchmark in either direction for a stock's status to change.
