Emerging AI Infra stocks (former crypto miners) continue to see strong investor interest with a series of new deals announced in recent weeks. Our industry deals tracker for miners has seen a new deal every week in July, with combined deals standing at over 7.5GW contracted equivalent to $150Bn multi-year contracts. Investors debate the durability of 'third party capacity' as hyperscalers/AI labs build their own capacity. We believe, the 'time to power' and GW-scale power pipeline (with future energization schedules extending till 2028-2030) is even more valuable given the supply constraints amid rising political backlash to data centers - majority of miner capacity in red states such as Texas. We argue further, Bitcoin miners are not given enough credit for execution - we are seeing a pattern of on-time delivery driven by years of experience in managing construction, labour and the power equipment supply chain. We are overweight on the sector, although, we are watching closely for which management teams break out on execution and durable client relationships.

Recent co-location deals have seen improving economics for infra developers, through a combination of better revenue yield and high margin conversion (triple net structure). WULF's deal with Anthropic stands out with average annual revenue of $2.4Mn per IT MW, indicating a 30% improvement on the industry average ($1.8Mn per IT MW). CLSK's and HUT's deal (~$1.9Mn/MW) stand out with 100% NOI margin structure, essentially converting full revenue into EBITDA.

Beyond the contracted orderbook, miners are demonstrating their ability to manage supply chain, labour force and community relationships amid political challenges to data center build-out. Players like (WULF, GLXY and RIOT) have energized initial phases of their contracted capacities on time. We expect delivery pace to pick up in H2'26 with WULF (delivering 378 IT MW to Fluidstack), CORZ (scaling to 450 IT MW with CoreWeave) and CIFR starting phased delivery of AWS and Fluidstack contracts.

IREN has upgraded their CY26e ARR guidance from $3.7Bn to over $4Bn. 85% of the ARR is already contracted, while IREN remains in active customer discussions across its entire 2026 and 2027 expansion pipeline. For IREN's recent AI cloud contracts, we estimate a 20-25% pricing improvement vs initial contracts. Further, IREN management indicated customers prepaying upto 45% of GPU capex. Beyond long term contracts with Microsoft and NVIDIA, IREN's cloud customers now include a broader list of clients Perplexity, Fluidstack, Fireworks, Figure AI (robotics) etc.

INVESTMENT IMPLICATIONS

Emerging AI Infra stocks remain well positioned to solve 'time to compute' given their planned 30GW power portfolio and operating ability to deliver 'warm powered shells' in time. Over the past two years, miners have contracted 7.5 GW of power capacity to hyperscalers, neoclouds and AI-chip manufacturers across 20+ deals worth over $150Bn.

We rate WULF Outperform (PT$36), CIFR Outperform (PT$32), CORZ Outperform (PT$32), CLSK Outperform (PT $24), RIOT Outperform (PT $30) and MARA Market-Perform (PT $17). We continue to like IREN as a vertically integrated neocloud. We rate IREN Outperform (PT $100).

AI COLOCATION - GROWING ORDERBOOK, IMPROVING ECONOMICS AND ON TRACK EXECUTION

Emerging AI infra players (former crypto miners!) have so far contracted ~7 GW of gross power for long-term AI colocation leases to multiple customers including hyperscalers, neoclouds, enterprises and high investment grade tenants. Based on the names we track, the industry AI colocation orderbook stands at ~$135Bn (excluding the expansion options). So far in July, miners have contracted 1.2GW gross power across 3 colocation leases, securing $35Bn in total contract value. We share key takeaways from recent deals:

(i) Strong deal momentum across new and existing customers: Our emerging AI infrastructure players (former Bitcoin miners) continue to sign new colocation deals with both existing and new customers. In our view, a growing new customer base and expanding relationship with existing tenants benefits both established infrastructure players (like HUT, WULF) and new entrants like (CLSK). Recently, WULF signed a $19Bn deal with Anthropic (link), CLSK signed a $6.6Bn deal with global technology company (link) and HUT signed another $9.8Bn deal with an existing high investment grade client. Repeat contracts are a strong indicator of improving execution credibility and customer relationships.

(ii) Improving economics - Triple net structure, long duration: Lease structures are converging towards infrastructure-style triple net economics. Under triple net leases, tenant bears power, operating costs, taxes and insurance, effectively generating ~100% NOI margin for the landlord. Of the three colocation deals announced in July 2026, CLSK and HUT have secured triple net leases, while WULF has not disclosed expected NOI margins from the Anthropic deal. Further, recent colocation deals have a base term of 15-20 years (initial industry deals at 10-12 years). Longer contract duration caps upside from future rent escalation but also improves future revenue visibility and de-risks data center buildout capex.

(iii) Bitcoin miners continue to guide for $9-12Mn capex per IT MW: Colocation business benefits from a capital light structure. Despite tight supply chains and execution complexities, Bitcoin miners have not indicated any cost overruns so far. Bitcoin miners continue to guide for $9-12 Mn capex per IT MW for the recent deals. Further, miners have secured contractual safeguards against increasing capex - for example, Amazon (covered by Mark Shmulik) reimburses capex over and above $10.5 Mn per IT MW to Cipher for the Stingray deal.

(iv) Improving financing spreads: Financing spreads continue to improve for data center projects backed by Bitcoin miners. Bitcoin miners are now directly contracting capacity to high-investment grade tenants, improving the financeability of their data center assets. HUT's $4.25Bn investment grade notes were rated Baa2 and priced at T+165 bps (at 6.129%). The offering was the largest, tightest priced and highest rated investment-grade bond issued to date in a single-sponsor data center construction financing.

(v) Delivery remains on track: Execution and timely delivery remain critical for Bitcoin miners trying to build scalable data center platforms. Bitcoin miners have met the initial delivery milestones with Galaxy (not covered) recently energizing 133 IT MW Phase 1 at Helios, WULF already billing 60 IT MW to Core42 etc. We expect delivery pace to pick up in H2'26 with WULF (delivering 378 IT MW to Fluidstack), CORZ (scaling to 450 IT MW with CoreWeave) and CIFR starting phased delivery of AWS and Fluidstack contracts.

RECENT COLOCATION CONTRACTS - WULF, CLSK AND HUT

WULF

WULF announced (link) a $19Bn AI contract with Anthropic, its third AI deal across a growing bluechip clientele - Core42 (private), Fluidstack (Google backstopped), and Anthropic (private). WULF's AI orderbook now stands at $27Bn contracted revenue against ~839 IT MW over 10-20 years long term deals.

WULF announced $19Bn deal with Anthropic: WULF has contracted out 401 IT MW to Anthropic at the Justified Data site (Kentucky). WULF has not yet disclosed details on margin structure and capex, however key terms of the deal include:

- Contract duration: 20-year lease agreement with Anthropic at its Justified Data campus in Hawesville, Kentucky, with two 5-year renewal options making it the longest duration deal signed by emerging AI infra players (peers still securing 10-15 year base contract terms).
- Revenue Yield: The total contract revenue stands at ~$19Bn for the base term, implying an average ARR of $950 Mn. Assuming 3% annual rent escalator implies ~10% improvement in base rent (first year rent) vs the previous Fluidstack deal at Lake Mariner. WULF continues to benefit from efficient PUE buildout (Justified Data contract implies a PUE of 1.2 - gross 480 MW and 401 IT MW).

- Delivery Schedule: WULF expects to deliver the initial capacity to Anthropic in H2'27e, with full delivery expected in early 2028e.
- Financing: The deal is expected to be supported by investment grade credit, allowing favorable financing terms vs WULF's prior deals with indirect hyperscaler exposure through neocloud tenants/Google credit backstop arrangements.

WULF announced sale of Abernathy JV stake prioritizing balance sheet management/full ownership model: WULF announced the sale of 50.1% stake in Abernathy JV - simplifying accounting, and shifting towards an infrastructure business model with full ownership, direct customer relationships and complete operational control. The invested $450Mn equity stake in the Abernathy JV is being sold to investor group led by Fluidstack for $530Mn (implying ~18% return). WULF expects to redeploy the capital into fully owned AI infrastructure buildouts.

We continue to like WULF's power pipeline: WULF controls 3.6GW of power assets across key data center markets like Kentucky, Maryland and New York, de-risking power pipeline from changing regulatory policies or grid dynamics in a single state. WULF leverages brownfield sites with existing power and transmission infrastructure to deliver HPC capacity at lower incremental capex vs greenfield buildouts. The power pipeline supports multi-year development runway with Muskie and Morgantown facilities each supporting a 1GW campus. WULF is targeting to deliver 250-500 MW of critical IT load each year by full development of existing power assets.

CLSK

CleanSpark (CLSK) has announced (link) its first AI colocation contract with a high investment grade, leading global technology company (tenant name not disclosed). The 20-year triple net lease contracts out 175 IT MW at CLSK's Sandersville site in Georgia for $6.6Bn total contracted revenue.

Key highlights from CLSK's AI colocation deal announcement:

(i) Scale: CLSK has contracted out 175 IT MW to a global technology company at its Sandersville facility in Georgia. Further, the monetization runway remains substantial as the tenant has also executed a letter of intent and exclusivity arrangement covering CLSK's entire Texas portfolio - 885 MW planned power across 718 acres.

(ii) Contract Duration: The base contract term is 20 years, with two 5-year extension options. Longer contract duration improves future revenue visibility and de-risks data center buildout capex.

(iii) Revenue and Margin Structure: CLSK has secured a $6.6Bn contract, generating $330Mn average ARR over 20 year deal term. The lease has a triple net structure that effectively generates ~100% NOI margin, fully converting revenue into operating EBITDA. CLSK's contract implies average annual revenue yield of $1.9Mn per IT MW vs $2.4Mn for WULF's 20 year Anthropic deal announced in early July. However, we believe this reflects CLSK's first deal pricing, and economics will improve as CLSK builds its execution track record (as we have seen with other miners in our coverage - CIFR and WULF).

(iv) Capex Guidance: CLSK has guided for $10-12 Mn capex per IT MW. With the tenant being high-investment grade global technology company, we expect project financing details to be announced soon. Based on our analysis, the deal generates ~12% unlevered IRR (Exhibit 8). We believe CLSK's AI contract can deliver significant equity IRR based on current project financing market dynamics (80-90% loan to value at 6-7% cost of debt).

(v) Delivery Schedule: The initial delivery is expected to begin in Q4'27 (15-18 months time-to-market from deal signing). CLSK benefits from existing Bitcoin mining infrastructure built at the site.

HUT

HUT8 (not covered) has fully commercialized its Beacon Point campus with a second lease worth $9.8Bn for 352 IT MW (triple net, NNN) with the same high investment grade tenant - doubling existing contracted capacity to 704 IT MW (1 GW gross)(link). Across its Beacon Point and River Bend campuses, HUT has now contracted ~949 IT MW with a TCV of ~$27Bn and ~$1.75Bn annual NOI. The key highlights of the recent contract are:

(i) Scale: The Beacon Point site now has 704 IT MW contracted capacity against 1 GW (gross) utility capacity secured under its AEP Texas interconnection agreement. The existing tenant has expanded its partnership with HUT, doubling the contracted capacity from 352 IT MW to 704 IT MW through a second lease.

(ii) Contract duration: The base term of the contract is 15 years with three 5-year extension options embedded in the contract.

(iii) Revenue and margin structure: The phase-2 contract on Beacon Point carries $9.8Bn contract value generating an annual revenue of ~$655Mn over 15-year lease term. This translates to ~$1.86 Mn per IT MW, which is lower than the $2.4 Mn in the WULF-Anthropropic contract announced in early July. A repeat contract, however is proof of HUT's credibility as an emerging AI colocation player.

(iv) Capex guidance: The capex guidance remains the same as the first contract at $9-11 Mn/IT MW.

(v) Delivery schedule: The initial delivery of data halls for the second phase contract is expected in Q2'28e, while the Phase 1 deal delivery expected to start in Q3'27e. No incremental utility capacity is required for the delivery as the full 1 GW is already secured under interconnection agreement with AEP Texas. HUT has disclosed that site preparation is underway, long lead equipment is procured for Phase 1 and initial energization remains on schedule for Q1'27e.

Key takeaways

Scale vs Economics	Large scale deals (300-500MW IT load) have moderate IRRs ranging between 8-12%, indicating Bitcoin miner's preference to secure larger deal size and increased negotiation power of counterparty
Counterparty	Economics of direct hyperscaler deals are improving; HUT and CIFR's triple net lease structure deliver >12% IRR
Retrofit vs Greenfield	Lower retrofit capex (e.g., RIOT-AMD) or capex sharing arrangement (like CIFR-AWS) with clients improve deal IRR by capping upfront capital investment

IREN: CLOUD ARR GUIDANCE INCREASE LED BY ENTERPRISE CONTRACTS

IREN has yet again raised its ARR target for CY26e from $3.7Bn to over $4Bn, led by recently announced $2.8Bn multi-year cloud contracts with leading AI developers. 85% of the total targeted ARR is already contracted (~$3.4Bn). IREN is on-track to build 480MW cloud capacity, growing from 3 MW in last 12 months. After including NVIDIA contract that is expected to ramp up in early 2027, IREN is targeting $4.7Bn cloud ARR over 540 gross MW. IREN's customers now include Microsoft, NVIDIA, Perplexity (not covered), Fluidstack (not covered), Figure AI (not covered), Together AI (not covered), Fireworks AI (not covered), Fal AI (not covered), Hume AI (not covered), and a new leading AI developer (name not disclosed).

OUR TAKEAWAYS FROM THE $2.8BN NEW AI CLOUD CONTRACTS

- Improving enterprise pricing: Based on IREN's Q1'CY26 update, IREN had contracted $2.4Bn of the $3.7Bn ARR for CY26e (excluding NVIDIA contract). Now IREN has raised the ARR guidance by ~$0.3Bn basis the new contract economics, hence we estimate a 20-25% improvement on the pricing of new contracts.
- Average contract duration: The weighted average contract term is ~4 years. Adjusting for 5 year Microsoft and NVIDIA contract, we expect average duration of the new enterprise contracts to be ~3 years. At PUE of 1.3 (45 IT MW on 60 MW gross), we expect the NVIDIA contract to translate into annual revenue of $15Mn/ IT MW, implying a payback period of <2.5 years on the GPU capex. On the blended $4Bn ARR, IREN's payback period for GPU capex is ~2.6 years, hence an average contract duration of 4 years de-risks IREN's GPU capex.

- Customer prepayments: Recent contracts include customer prepayments representing ~45% of the associated GPU capex. A hyperscaler backed contract is usually financed at lower rates vs shorter term contracts with enterprise clients and AI labs. However, upfront customer prepayments reduce net capex requirement for IREN and offers a scalable path for funding cloud buildout.

BREAKDOWN OF IREN'S $4BN ARR TARGET FOR CY26E

(i) ~$1Bn in new contracts with leading AI developers: IREN has announced AI contracts with multiple AI developers for $2.8Bn total contract value. Based on IREN's disclosures, this implies ~$1Bn annual contracted revenue, across both bare metal and managed cloud services.

(ii) $1.94Bn Microsoft contract (Q3/4 2026E): IREN has contracted 200MW critical IT load cloud to Microsoft (covered by Mark L. Moerdler) for 5 years with $1.94 Bn ARR. The contract consists of Horizon 1-4 data center buildings, each supporting 50MW IT load. IREN expects delivery of Horizon 1 in Q3'26 and delivery of the remaining 150 IT MW by CY2026 end. We see Horizon 1 delivery as a de-risking event for IREN, representing ~$0.5Bn ARR on full ramp-up (vs current cloud ARR $134Mn).

(iii) $0.5Bn Prince George contracts: At Prince George data center all GPUs are operating or undergoing commissioning. Prince George cloud capacity is fully contracted for $0.5Bn ARR.

(iv) $0.6Bn uncontracted: 15% of the targeted ARR for CY26 is still uncontracted. IREN is engaged with customers across its entire 2026 and 2027 expansion program.

CY27e ramp-up - $3.4Bn NVIDIA contract: The 60MW deal with NVIDIA is expected to generate $0.7Bn ARR. The deal is expected to ramp up in early 2027 at the Childress air-cooled data centers.

5.8 GW GLOBAL POWER REPRESENTS SIGNIFICANT GROWTH RUNWAY

IREN now has access to 5.8 GW of power capacity - US (Childress 750MW, Sweetwater 2 GW, Oklahoma 1.6 GW), Canada (British Columbia 160MW), Europe (490MW secured power in Spain) and Australia (800 MW). The current $4Bn targeted ARR utilizes mere 8% of IREN's total power portfolio, leaving significant growth optionality for the remaining sites. IREN is targeting 480MW cloud by CY26E, growing to 1.2GW by CY27E.

Childress, Texas (750MW)

- Microsoft contract (300MW gross): IREN is building 200MW (IT load) liquid cooled facilities for Microsoft in Texas. The first 50MW IT load facility is scheduled for delivery in Q3'26 (Horizon 1). Horizon 2-4 are expected to be delivered by CY26 end.
- NVIDIA contract (60MW gross): Childress' existing air-cooled buildings are expected to support 60MW NVIDIA contract, targeting ramp from early 2027.
- Horizon 5-6 (150MW gross): IREN is constructing 100MW (IT load) of liquid cooled capacity in Childress across Horizon 5 and 6.
- Additional air-cooled capacity (240MW gross): IREN is retrofitting existing air-cooled capacity at Childress to support new cloud deployments.

British Columbia, Canada (160MW)

- Prince George (50 MW): All GPUs are operating or undergoing commissioning at the Prince George facilities.
- Mackenzie (80MW): Mackenzie data center is prepared for GPU installations commencing in H2'26

- Canal Flats (30MW): IREN is retrofitting 30MW of existing air-cooled capacity at Canal Flats for Phase 2 cloud deployment.

Sweetwater hub (2GW)

- Sweetwater 1 (1.4 GW): IREN has successfully energized Sweetwater 1 in April'26. Construction for initial 200MW (IT load) of liquid-cooled data centers is underway at the Sweetwater site. The data center is designed for next generation chip architectures including NVIDIA Vera Rubin. The initial phase is expected to lay the foundation of buildout across the remaining site capacity.
- Sweetwater 2 (0.6 GW): Sweetwater 2 is expected to ramp up in 2028E.

Additional pipeline (2.9 GW)

- Kiowa, Oklahoma (1.6GW): IREN has acquired a 1.6GW site at Oklahoma, diversifying its US presence from Texas. The initial data center capacity is expected to ramp-up from 2028.
- Spain, Europe (490 MW): IREN has acquired 490MW of secured, grid-connected power in Spain through the acquisition of Nostrum Group.
- Australia (800MW): IREN has announced the signing of a transmission agreement to support 800MW data center campus in South Australia. The site has submarine fiber connectivity into key Asia-Pacific demand centers and is on track to commence energization from 2028.
