EMAX: as energy prices fall, upside risks to 2H growth emerge

Underpinned by surging tech exports and production, EMAX growth has averaged over 6% q/q, saar – almost twice as strong as potential growth – over the last two quarters. While the region's reliance on Middle Eastern energy made it particularly vulnerable to the conflict, the worst outcomes were avoided, as economies aggressively sourced energy from other sources, ran down reserves and transitioned to substitutes. Despite the energy headwinds, therefore, 2Q growth is still tracking close to trend. Our extant forecast calls for trend-like growth in the second half of the year, but we see growing upside risks from the confluence of two forces:

- Tech production continues to hum along at a strong pace. While this week's May IP in Taiwan revealed that tech momentum has cooled from its previous scorching pace, it is still running at a very strong 30% q/q, saar annualized in Taiwan. Similarly, 20-day exports from Korea point to continued strong export momentum, though recent tech gains have been more price led.
- The end of the Middle East conflict and the sharp fall in crude prices significantly tempers the adverse terms of trade shock that the region was confronting. Headline inflation can be expected to soften, boosting household purchasing power, reducing the quantum of monetary tightening expected in certain economies (Philippines) and reinforcing our expectation that others in the region (RBI, BoT, MAS) won't be forced to hike, easing financial conditions in those economies.

To be sure, the sharp forecasted step down in 2H Chinese growth creates growth headwinds for the region. But the region's export exposure to China has reduced in recent years, and only Indonesia and Philippines saw a meaningful uptick in exports to China in the wake of above-trend Chinese growth in recent quarters. The impact of China downshifting is therefore likely to be more limited to a few economies. That said, disappointing Chinese domestic demand would increase the incentives to export excess capacity to the region and, indeed, around the world.

All told, however, upside risks to EMAX growth have emerged for 2H as energy prices correct and tech hums along.

Oil Down, Dollar Up: A Rotation in Asian Central Banks

With energy prices declining but the US Dollar strengthening, pressures on central banks will rotate in the region. Bank Indonesia is most vulnerable to a stronger dollar because of the pressures the rupiah faces and, even as we have another 25 bps of hikes in our forecast, risks of more tightening will increase if dollar strength continues. A stronger dollar and continued tech momentum also increase the risks that the Bank of Korea – which we already expect to hike by 100 bps over the next year – will have to hike more, and that the CBC in Taiwan hikes towards the end of the year.

The remaining central banks in the region are more focused on domestic growth-inflation dynamics and falling energy prices, and headline inflation will come as a relief. Odds have therefore increased that the BSP in the Philippines will have to hike less than the 6% terminal rate currently in our forecast. It also increases our conviction that the RBI, BoT and MAS stay on hold – bucking market pricing of multiple hikes for the RBI – even though a severe El Nino still remains an inflation risk.

China: Weak May Fiscal Data Leaves Room for 2H Catch-Up

This week's fiscal data reinforces our view that China's 2Q slowdown reflects not only weak domestic demand but also a delayed fiscal impulse. Despite resilient revenue in May, fiscal expenditure contracted for a second month, with infrastructure outlays down 12.0% oya; government-managed fund revenue and spending fell sharply as land sales weakened further. This helps explain the lack of infrastructure support and our forecast for 2Q GDP growth to slow to 3.3% q/q saar. That said, the fiscal undershoot leaves the mid-year outlook less negative: fiscal deposits rose to the second-highest May level in the past decade, and special local government bond issuance has rebounded in June, creating room for faster policy execution in 2H.

Our 2H view rests on a better, though still uneven, growth mix. We forecast GDP growth at 3.5% q/q saar in 3Q and 3.7% in 4Q, leaving full-year 2026 growth at 4.7% y/y. Fiscal execution should improve, and global IP strength and the AI capex cycle should continue to support Chinese exports and high-tech/equipment manufacturing, partly offsetting weak consumption. The reopening of the Strait of Hormuz and lower oil prices should ease energy and supply-chain pressures, helping producer sentiment.

For next week's PMIs, we expect the NBS manufacturing PMI to edge up to 50.2 and the RatingDog PMI to 52.1, with production still modestly expansionary but new orders remaining soft. Downside risks are concentrated in weak private investment, soft consumption, and the ongoing housing slump. If the June activity data released in July are very weak, policy response is likely to become more visible after the late-July Politburo meeting: faster project approvals, quicker deployment of special local government bond proceeds, a more aggressive drawdown of fiscal deposits, expanded policy-bank financing, and targeted support for infrastructure and housing stabilization. Monetary policy should remain supportive, but fiscal policy is likely to do the heavier lifting in 2H.

Analyst Certification: The Research Analyst(s) denoted by an "AC" on the cover of this report certifies (or, where multiple Research Analysts are primarily responsible for this report, the Research Analyst denoted by an "AC" on the cover or within the document individually certifies, with respect to each security or issuer that the Research Analyst covers in this research) that: (1) all of the views expressed in this report accurately reflect the Research Analyst's personal views about any and all of the subject securities or issuers; and (2) no part of any of the Research Analyst's compensation was, is, or will be directly or indirectly related to the specific recommendations or views expressed by the Research Analyst(s) in this report. For all Korea-based Research Analysts listed on the front cover, if applicable, they also certify, as per KOFIA requirements, that the Research Analyst's analysis was made in good faith and that the views reflect the Research Analyst's own opinion, without undue influence or intervention.

All authors named within this report are Research Analysts who produce independent research unless otherwise specified. In Europe, Sector Specialists (Sales and Trading) may be shown on this report as contacts but are not authors of the report or part of the Research Department.

Important Disclosures

Company-Specific Disclosures: Important disclosures, including price charts and credit opinion history tables (if applicable), are available for compendium reports and all J.P. Morgan-covered companies, and certain non-covered companies, by visiting <https://www.jpmm.com/research/disclosures>, calling 1-800-477-0406, or e-mailing research.disclosure.inquiries@jpmorgan.com with your request.

History of Investment Recommendations:

A history of J.P. Morgan investment recommendations disseminated during the preceding 12 months can be accessed on the Research & Commentary page of <http://www.jpmorganmarkets.com> where you can also search by analyst name, sector or financial instrument.

Explanation of Emerging Markets Sovereign Research Ratings System and Valuation & Methodology:

Ratings System: J.P. Morgan uses the following issuer portfolio weightings for Emerging Markets Sovereign Research: Overweight (over the next three months, the recommended risk position is expected to outperform the relevant index, sector, or benchmark credit returns); Marketweight (over the next three months, the recommended risk position is expected to perform in line with the relevant index, sector, or benchmark credit returns); and Underweight (over the next three months, the recommended risk position is expected to underperform the relevant index, sector, or benchmark credit returns). NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating for this security because of either legal, regulatory or policy reasons or because of lack of a sufficient fundamental basis. The previous rating no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. NC is Not Covered. An NC designation is not a rating or a recommendation. Recommendations will be at the issuer level, and an issuer recommendation applies to all of the index-eligible bonds at the same level for the issuer. When we change the issuer-level rating, we are changing the rating for all of the issues covered, unless otherwise specified. Ratings for quasi-sovereign issuers in the EMBIG may differ from the ratings provided in EM corporate coverage.

Valuation & Methodology: For J.P. Morgan's Emerging Markets Sovereign Research, we assign a rating to each sovereign issuer (Overweight, Marketweight or Underweight) based on our view of whether the combination of the issuer's fundamentals, market technicals, and the relative value of its securities will cause it to outperform, perform in line with, or underperform the credit returns of the EMBIGD index over the next three months. Our view of an issuer's fundamentals includes our opinion of whether the issuer is becoming more or less able to service its debt obligations when they become due and payable, as well as whether its willingness to service debt obligations is increasing or decreasing.

J.P. Morgan Emerging Markets Sovereign Research Ratings Distribution, as of April 4, 2026

	Overweight (buy)	Marketweight (hold)	Underweight (sell)
Emerging Markets Sovereign Research Universe*	6%	84%	10%
IB clients	100%	86%	100%

*Please note that the percentages may not add to 100% because of rounding.

Percentage of subject issuers within each of the "Overweight," "Marketweight" and "Underweight" categories for which J.P. Morgan has provided investment banking services within the previous 12 months.

For purposes of FINRA ratings distribution rules only, our Overweight rating falls into a buy rating category; our Marketweight rating falls into a hold rating category; and our Underweight rating falls into a sell rating category. The Emerging Markets Sovereign Research Rating Distribution is at the issuer level. Issuers with an NR or an NC designation are not included in the table above. This information is current as of the end of the most recent calendar quarter.
